FREIGHTER WRECKED OFF ALASKA; 37 IN DANGER

KODIAK, Alaska, Sept. 12.—Lashed by terrific gales and pounded by heavy seas the Oceanic and Oriental Company's freighter Golden Forest was breaking up today on the north shore of Shelikof Straits, near Katmai Volcano where she grounded on September 5.

In answer to a call for assistance, the U. S. coast guard cutter Haida, en route to Cordova with a member of her crew seriously ill, changed her course toward the wreck.

The wrecked freighter carries a crew of thirty-seven. Salvage ships standing by are believed to have transferred some of the crew, but how many is not known. The vessel is rated as a total loss.

The Golden Forest was enroute to Dairen from San Francisco when disaster overtook her. She went aground on Avatanak Island on July 24.

Freed from her position by salvage ships she was being towed to Seattle when a storm struck her and the rescue ships and sent the freighter ashore near Katmai Volcano, Sheikof Straits.

RETIRED ADMIRAL SET HOOVER ON TRAIL OF NAVY PROPAGANDIST

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The word which started President Hoover on a hot hunt for those responsible for William B. Shearer's activities against naval limitations came from the quarter deck of the navy itself and out of the mouth of Rear Admiral Hilary Pollard Jones, the United Press learned today.

The venerable sailor, retired for age but recalled to service to help Mr. Hoover realize his vision of real naval reduction, initiated events which culminated last Friday in the president's denunciation of Shearer and demand for explanation from three ship building companies.

Jones met Shearer at Geneva in 1927. He was shocked and angered by the propagandist's activities. As a naval member of the American delegation to the three-power conference, Jones discussed Shearer's work with Ambassador Hugh Gibson, chief delegate. They agreed Shearer's presence was undesirable.

"I never saw Shearer before the Geneva conference," Jones laconically explained. "I spoke to him just once."

But Jones was not sparing in words of condemnation of Shearer's activities. He spoke in public and private, describing Shearer's presence as a "grievous insult" to the American navy. When Shearer's suit for $250,000 was filed against the American Brown-Boveri Company, the Newport News Drydock and Ship Building Company and the Bethlehem Ship Building Corporation, Jones spoke his mind into a channel leading directly to President Hoover's office.

Jones, who possesses the complete confidence of the White House and who will be among the American representatives at any naval conference which may develop, already has been accused of being Shearer's "tool."

Rep. McClintic, Democrat, Oklahoma, and a member of the house naval affairs committee, telegraphed Mr. Hoover charging Jones had close connection with Shearer at Geneva. In his reply, Mr. Hoover said:

"I have ample reason to know that there could not possibly be such a relationship as you suggest."

In addition to knowledge of Jones' integrity, the president addressed McClintic only a short time after Jones himself had instigated the drive against Shearer's activities.

The fact that Jones was one of the first to resent Shearer's activities is welcomed in administration circles as an omen of naval co-operation in the president's undertaking. It added to Jones' already influential position.

The admiral is slated for examination by the senate naval affairs committee and pending his appearance there, is not discussing his relationship to the attempt to discover who was behind Shearer.

The senate naval affairs committee met today to decide how the investigation ordered without a dissenting vote by the senate into American shipbuilding propaganda at the Geneva conference will be conducted.

POWERFUL VARIETY OF DYNAMITE USED IN MURDER ATTEMPT

Explosive Found In Publisher's Auto Tested

MANSFIELD, O., Sept. 12.—Dynamite of the most powerful variety manufactured was used in the second attempt in ten months to take the life of R. C. Hoiles, publisher of the Mansfield News, it was reported today after a test.

Ten sticks of dynamite were found wired to the spark plugs in the engine of Hoiles' car Saturday. The dynamite had been planted in the car while Hoiles was at a banquet at a country club near here.

Chief of Police Herbert E. McClure Prosecutor G. F. Kalbfleisch and Sheriff Ralph A. Schad decided to test a stick of the dynamite. They reported today that one stick tore a big hole in the ground on a farm where the test was made. The fuse also exploded when it was tested.

C. A. Myers, superintendent of the Ohio bureau of criminal identification, was here last night to take additional finger prints. He returned to Columbus today and will make a report within a few days concerning his findings. He obtained a number of finger prints on Holle's auto but had not determined if any of them are of the persons who planted the dynamite in the machine.

Hoiles' home was bombed last October and although the family was asleep in the house at the time, no one was injured.

DEMOCRATS LOSE IN VARE CASE BATTLE; FEAR TARIFF VOTE

Opponents Lose Confidence When Action Delayed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The possibility that Democrats may be unable to hold their ranks against the Republican tariff bill offered a complex problem to the party leaders today following the unexpected and crushing senate defeat administered to them late yesterday on the Vare case.

Instead of maintaining their air of confidence as the tariff bill came back before the senate for discussion, both the Democratic and the farm bloc leaders were looking to the broken fences around their own flocks. They fear if the Vare case lineup should continue, their apparently bright chances against the tariff bill will fall flat.

Five Democrats, just enought to turn the tide, abandoned the farm bloc coalition engineered by their leaders, and voted with the administration group to put over the Watson motion delaying action until next December 3 on the three-year old election fraud charges against Senator-Elect William S. Vare of Pennsylvania.

These five are Broussard, La., Fletcher, Fla., Hawes, Mo.; Pittman, Nev.; Tydings, Maryland.

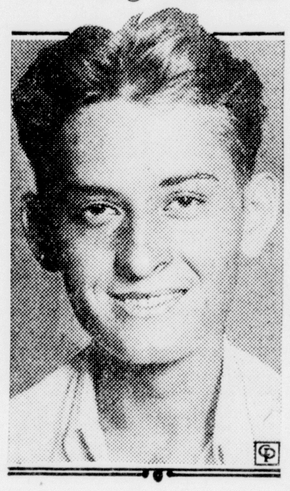

For the first time on an important roll call seven senators were absent without pairs, nearly all of them Republicans who would have voted with the bloc.

It was only because of these switches and the failure of the farm bloc to get its vote in line that Republican floor leader Watson was able to put off until December, the coalition move which was threatening to delay tariff action.

There is only one major issue in the tariff bill upon which the Democrats are united and that issue, the administrative features, was brought before the senate today at the formal opening of tariff debate.

Senator Furnifold Simmons of North Carolina, ranking minority tariff leader, held the floor to outline his opposition to the flexible provisions of the tariff act, the proposed system of basing tariff duties on American values instead of foreign cost of production and the proposal to continue the tariff commission in its present powerful status. The Democrats want to abolish the commission and re-establish it as a fact-finding agency for congress.

STATE UNIVERSITY DENIES CHARGES OF HIRING ATHLETES

Proselyting Charge May Result In Investigation

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 12.—Drastic action to clear Ohio State University of all charges of proselyting will be taken by school officials, L. W. St. John, director of athletics at Ohio State, said today.

Charges that Red Rosequist, prospective star tackle at John Carroll University, had been offered $25 a week, board, room and tuition to attend Ohio State were made by Coach Ralph Vince of John Carroll yesterday.

Vince declared Rosequist told him the proposition was made by Hal E. Ells, senior at Ohio State now working in Cleveland, and Fred Schweitzer, former head of the Cleveland Ohio State Alumni.

Ells admitted talking to Rosequist but said he had only offered to get him a job here as he wished to attend the university. He said he had not broached the subject until it was mentioned by Rosequist.

St. John warmly denounced the affair and said he would have the university take some action.

"While it is not within my power to act, I will suggest that the university take immediate steps against all persns spreading such false information as would officially connect Ohio State with any stealing of players."

"I am satisfied no one at the university had any connection with the affair," he declared. "The university cannot be held accountable for promises made by anyone save its own officials, and I do not know on whose authority Ells acted."

Rosequist was expected to report back to the John Carroll training camp today.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 12.—H. S. (Dave) Warwich, Youngstown real estate man and president of the Ohio State University Alumni Association today denied charges made by Ralph Vince, coach of John Carroll University, Cleveland, that representatives of the association offered Ted Rosequist, Carroll athlete, free board, room, tuition and a job to attend Ohio State.

Warwick said he was confident that if overtures were made to Rosequist they were not in the name of the University or Alumni Association.

BELIEVE MISSING SHIP IS SIGHTED

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—A spark of hope for the gravel-carrying ship, Anbaste, missing more than forty-eight hours, was seen today in a report that a vessel, believed to be the carrier, had been sighted by an aviator, thirty-five miles out on Lake Michigan.

The naval flier, Lieut. Frank Hoskins, said he was not able to identify the ship definitely owing to the poor visibility but believed itw as the Anbaste.

SECOND STRIKE OF PUPILS REPORTED

BELLAIRE, Sept. 12—School authorities were troubled here today by a second school strike which bobbed up in Belmont County.

Pupils in Steel School, near Martins Ferry, they learned, were attending classes conducted by a teacher hired by their parents, although the building had officially been abandoned.

More than thirty-one pupils have been on strike at McCainsville since school opened ten days ago. County Superintendent George M. Pougue took official steps to end both strikes today when he arranged with parents of the striking children and their attorney. The schools had been ordered closed by the state board of education.

HAMILTON, O., Sept. 12.—John C. Calhoun, Hamilton police chief, today declined to comment on the row between Patrolman Joe Koons and Detective O. E. Kolodzik but said he would hear their case if either requested a hearing. Both are suspended. Koons was vindicated by Municipal Court Judge A. J. Pater yesterday for striking Kolodzik with a mace. The judge said it was natural for Koons to believe the other man was armed and might harm him. Kolodzik, former police chief, is interested financially in a private detective agency here, it was disclosed.

PURPOSE OF BANKER WHO MULCTED BANKS MAY BE SUCCESSFUL

Telluride Bank To Benefit From Scheme

NEW CASTLE, Wyo., Sept. 12.—Legal entanglements threatened today to defeat the law itself and accomplish the aim of the Robin Hood scheme which Charles Delos Waggoner, Telluride, Colo., bank president, contends was the motive for the $500,000 swindle he executed in Wall Street.

Conflict between state and federal authorities and the banking laws may end in the retention by the Telluride bank of the $500,000 which the bank president obtained on faked telegrams from six New York banks. In such case, there were indications that Waggoner's scheme of stealing from eastern concerns to repay his investors' losses might be completed despite his arrest and possible imprisonment.

Waggoner's plot, according to his confession, was based on a desire to have eastern interest pay for the losses of his investors, which he said was brought about by the closing down of large mines in the Telluride district, owned by the eastern interests and the withdrawal of deposits by the owners of the mining properties.

There appears to be widespread fear that Waggoner has perpetrated the "perfect financial crime." Money that the western banker got in the effete east now reposes, and, with a certain amount of security for the present, in his depository at Telluride, where he said he hopes to see it paid out to depositors and other creditors who were "hard hit when the bottom fell out of things down there."

Lawyers who have been asked if Waggoner's scheme was not "perfect" admit there is a strong possibility the New York banks may never regain their money.

Also there is facing many of those who would make the banker pay for his audacity, the problem of proving where the offense was committed—in Colorado or in New York.

The new "wolf of Wall Street," who virtually set his own trap by registering under his own name and openly living at a resort east of here apparently is the least concerned of any involved. His only desire now is to "get it over with." He is prepared to spend the rest of his life in prison, he said, and hinted he might not even hire a lawyer in defense.

He is waiting in a cell at the county jail here, where he was taken Tuesday night after his arrest. A warrant charging use of the mails to defraud may be served on him today if copies of the complaints made against him in New York reach here in time. Otherwise, the warrant will not be issued until tomorrow and the arraignment here, with resultant fixing of bond, will follow.

This was a new day and it was made brighter for the "hill billy" who gave Gotham a banking lesson Mrs. Waggoner and Delos, the son of the couple, were to arrive today from Denver, where they had been living "quietly" during the nationwide hunt for husband and father. Both talked by telephone to the banker yesterday and both are standing solidly behind the head of the family who insists that he "only dared to help his friends and fellow-townsmen."

Today, Waggoner, seemingly still relieved that the chase it over, "because it was getting on his nerves," would not comment on his present ability or desire to make bond, nor would he say that he hesitated to return to New York immediately and see "what those bankers back there are going to do about it."

STRIKING CARMEN REJECT PLAN FOR SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTE

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 12.—New Orleans faced indefinite prolongation of its street car strike and a possible new reign of violence today, with the rejection of a settlement plan, the bombing of a street car and the police use of tear bombs overnight.

A few hours after strikers by a vote of 1009 to eighty-seven rejected a tentative agreement to return to work, a street car was blown from the tracks and partly wrecked by a bomb.

Strikebreakers operating the car were uninjured but a crowd of men, women and children gathered about them, jeering. Police, heavily patroling the streets to guard against such occurrences as a result of the strikers' vote, threw tear gas bombs to disperse the noise makers.

Acting Mayor T. M. Walmsley, who was present, upbraided the police for their action and ordered an immediate investigation.

"It was a public disgrace to the police," he said. "I saw one bomb explode in front of a woman with a baby in her arms."

Hundreds of workers, jobless and in dire want ever since the walkout June 2, milled in front of the union offices and cheered the announcement that the settlement had been rejected.

The agreement on which they turned thumbs down was signed in New York nine days ago by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor and General Manager A. B. Patterson of the New Orleans Street Car Company. It was approved by W. D. Mahon, national president of the Carmen's Union.

The strikers refused to accept the agreement because of the allegedly vague wording of a section which said they would be employed "as conditions permit."

Edward Peyroux, president of the Carmen's Local, said the men wanted to return to work at once and that the tentative agreement gave them no security to this effect. He added the strikers would be glad to assume their old jobs if the company assured immediate re-employment.

Public excitement was tense as the vote was taken on ending the transportation impasse of seventy-three days which has inconvenienced thousands, caused three deaths in riots and resulted in burning and bombing of street cars.

Police kept crowds moving on congested streets during the evening. Sensing possible disorder, few persons rode the cars, while many took to the strikers' jitneys.

Thus Dino Grandi became minister for foreign affairs; M. De Bono for colonies; General Pietro Gazzera became minister for war; Giuseppe Striani became minister of marine; Italo Balbo was named minister of aviation and former Under-secretary Bottai became the new secretary for labor and corporations.

Deputy Balbino Giuliano was appointed minister of education to replace Giuseppe Beluzzo, and henceforth the post wil be called the national education department.

Gunckel "entirely innocent" of allegations made by Joseph V. Hirsch, that he shared in the embezzlement from Memorial Hall of more than $16,000.

BEETHAM MAY RESIGN DRY POST BECAUSE OF LOSING BANK OFFICE

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 12.—Reports that he intends to resign in the near future as state prohibition commissioner were denied today by Commissioner Rupert R. Beetham, of Cadiz.

Beetham denied that he has any intention of resigning at the present. He left the impression, however, that his plans are by no means uncertain.

"I have no present intention of resigning," Beetham asserted. Then, with a smile, he added: "But my intentions might change over night."

When Beetham was appointed last January by Governor Cooper, the rumor was current that he accepted the post only temporarily with the understanding that he eventually would be made superintendent of banks.

Announcement Tuesday of the selection of State Representative O. C. Gray, of Cadiz, as banking superintendent, was followed by a report that Beetham was "fed up with his job," and intended to resign as dry chief.

TORTURE WARD BOSS AFTER KIDNAPING; RETALIATION SEEN

Opponent Is Slain Ten Days Ago In Similar Manner

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Ten days after the murder of his political opponent, Charles S. Brown, 35, ward leader, was kidnaped, tortured and shot to death last night.

Brown's body, the skull pierced by a dozen bullets, was thrown to the street from an automobile on the west side shortly before midnight. Deep gashes on the forehead and bruises on the body indicated the politician had been tortured for several hours. Police said the bullets apparently were fired into the man's head as he lay on the floor of the touring car pleading with his captors.

Brown was a precinct captain for Alderman Dorsey Crowe in the Forty-Second ward during the last aldermanic election. Henry Connors, the Forty-second ward leader for Richard R. Prendergast, Alderman Crowe's opponent, was assassinated ten days ago in a northside cafe.

Police were convinced Brown's murder was in direct retaliation for Connor's death. Prendergast, himself, told police that enemies made by his political activities probably accounted for Connor's death.

Several persons heard the shots which killed Brown and saw his body tossed from the rear of the touring car into the street. Brown's friends had not seen him since early afternoon leading to the belief that he had been kidnaped and carried on a torture ride for several hours before he was killed.

CONGRESSMAN DIES IN COTTAGE FIRE

ST. PAUL, Sept. 12.—The death of Representative D. J. Kvale in a lake cottage fire near Fergus Falls may open the door for the return to congress of Andrew J. Volstead.

Although the "father of the national enforcement act" has repeatedly indicated in the past few years that his mission in congress was done and that he had no desire to replace the man who deefated him, there were many who believed Volstead might be persuaded to accept the vacant post.

Volstead, at present legal advisor to the northwest prohibition district declared that he was not interested in congressional races now, but he did not say definitely that he would not be a candidate.

Kvale died Tuesday night when his cottage was ignited either by a gasoline stove or kerosene lamp. His body was not definitely identified until late Wednesday. He became a Minnesota representative in 1922 when he defeated Volstead by about 14,000 votes.

Morrison and Walter E. Willmot, both of Elizabeth, N. J., are scheduled to die on the same night.

The membership of the church now totals approximately 191,000 the report showed.

Property valuations of churches in the conference were increased by $1,500,000, according to the reports. More than $600,000 has also been paid off in property indebtedness.

Ministerial delegates laid aside their cares and worries for two hours last night to attend rural pastors banquet and the annual dinner of the Garrett alumni association.

Saturday afternoon the ministers are to be addressed by Gov. Myers Y. Cooper and Congressman C. Ellis Moore, of Cambridge.

COMPLETE RIVER IMPROVEMENT PLAN

PADUCAH, Ky., Sept. 12.—The $12,000,000 Ohio River improvement project, begun by the government in 1910, has been successfully completed with the opening of Dam Fifty-three, at Grand Chain, Ill., near here, it was announced today.

The dam is the final link in the chain from Pittsburgh to the mouth of the Ohio and its completion assures navigation throughout the year.

Construction, according to W. I. Gregory, supervising engineer, in charge of the Paducah-Evansville Ohio River district, was begun in 1925. Cost of the dam was approximately $4,500,000.

DEMOCRATS LOSE IN VARE CASE BATTLE; FEAR TARIFF VOTE

Opponents Lose Confidence When Action Delayed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The possibility that Democrats may be unable to hold their ranks against the Republican tariff bill offered a complex problem to the party leaders today following the unexpected and crushing senate defeat administered to them late yesterday on the Vare case.

Instead of maintaining their air of confidence as the tariff bill came back before the senate for discussion, both the Democratic and the farm bloc leaders were looking to the broken fences around their own flocks. They fear if the Vare case lineup should continue, their apparently bright chances against the tariff bill will fall flat.

Five Democrats, just enought to turn the tide, abandoned the farm bloc coalition engineered by their leaders, and voted with the administration group to put over the Watson motion delaying action until next December 3 on the three-year old election fraud charges against Senator-Elect William S. Vare of Pennsylvania.

These five are Broussard, La., Fletcher, Fla., Hawes, Mo.; Pittman, Nev.; Tydings, Maryland.

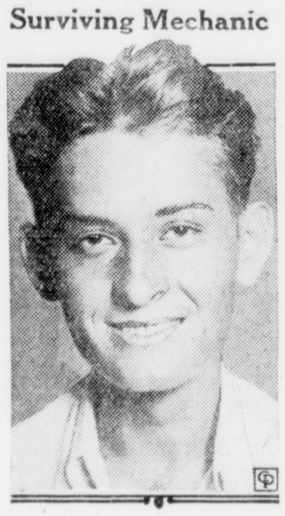

For the first time on an important roll call seven senators were absent without pairs, nearly all of them Republicans who would have voted with the bloc.

It was only because of these switches and the failure of the farm bloc to get its vote in line that Republican floor leader Watson was able to put off until December, the coalition move which was threatening to delay tariff action.

There is only one major issue in the tariff bill upon which the Democrats are united and that issue, the administrative features, was brought before the senate today at the formal opening of tariff debate.

Senator Furnifold Simmons of North Carolina, ranking minority tariff leader, held the floor to outline his opposition to the flexible provisions of the tariff act, the proposed system of basing tariff duties on American values instead of foreign cost of production and the proposal to continue the tariff commission in its present powerful status. The Democrats want to abolish the commission and re-establish it as a fact-finding agency for congress.

Surviving Mechanic

This photo of young Ward Miller, mechanic in the ill-fated plane in which Major Jack Wood attempted a non-stop Los Angeles-Cleveland flight, shows him on his arrival in Los Angeles. Miller recalls being hurled from the plane and pulling the ring of his parachute. When he "awoke", he could find no trace of the plane and hiked 25 miles to Needles, Cal., for aid. Wood was killed.

STATE UNIVERSITY DENIES CHARGES OF HIRING ATHLETES

Proselyting Charge May Result In Investigation

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 12.—Drastic action to clear Ohio State University of all charges of proselyting will be taken by school officials, L. W. St. John, director of athletics at Ohio State, said today.

Charges that Red Rosequist, prospective star tackle at John Carroll University, had been offered $25 a week, board, room and tuition to attend Ohio State were made by Coach Ralph Vince of John Carroll yesterday.

Vince declared Rosequist told him the proposition was made by Hal E. Ells, senior at Ohio State now working in Cleveland, and Fred Schweitzer, former head of the Cleveland Ohio State Alumni.

Ells admitted talking to Rosequist but said he had only offered to get him a job here as he wished to attend the university. He said he had not broached the subject until it was mentioned by Rosequist.

St. John warmly denounced the affair and said he would have the university take some action.

"While it is not within my power to act, I will suggest that the university take immediate steps against all persns spreading such false information as would officially connect Ohio State with any stealing of players."

"I am satisfied no one at the university had any connection with the affair," he declared. "The university cannot be held accountable for promises made by anyone save its own officials, and I do not know on whose authority Ells acted."

Rosequist was expected to report back to the John Carroll training camp today.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 12.—H. S. (Dave) Warwich, Youngstown real estate man and president of the Ohio State University Alumni Association today denied charges made by Ralph Vince, coach of John Carroll University, Cleveland, that representatives of the association offered Ted Rosequist, Carroll athlete, free board, room, tuition and a job to attend Ohio State.

Warwick said he was confident that if overtures were made to Rosequist they were not in the name of the University or Alumni Association.

BELIEVE MISSING SHIP IS SIGHTED

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—A spark of hope for the gravel-carrying ship, Anbaste, missing more than forty-eight hours, was seen today in a report that a vessel, believed to be the carrier, had been sighted by an aviator, thirty-five miles out on Lake Michigan.

The naval flier, Lieut. Frank Hoskins, said he was not able to identify the ship definitely owing to the poor visibility but believed itw as the Anbaste.

SECOND STRIKE OF PUPILS REPORTED

BELLAIRE, Sept. 12—School authorities were troubled here today by a second school strike which bobbed up in Belmont County.

Pupils in Steel School, near Martins Ferry, they learned, were attending classes conducted by a teacher hired by their parents, although the building had officially been abandoned.

More than thirty-one pupils have been on strike at McCainsville since school opened ten days ago. County Superintendent George M. Pougue took official steps to end both strikes today when he arranged with parents of the striking children and their attorney. The schools had been ordered closed by the state board of education.

REVEAL PLOTS IN COMMUNIST RAID

WIESBADEN, Germany, Sept. 12.—French army of occupation detectives and members of the Mainz police department raided the house of a communist leader at Gonsenheim, near Mainz, and seized large quantities of explosives and a mass of correspondence allegedly dealing with plots to wreck public buildings and to cause a general uprising, dispatches from the occupation zone today said.

PATROLMAN AND DETECTIVE FIGHT

HAMILTON, O., Sept. 12.—John C. Calhoun, Hamilton police chief, today declined to comment on the row between Patrolman Joe Koons and Detective O. E. Kolodzik but said he would hear their case if either requested a hearing. Both are suspended. Koons was vindicated by Municipal Court Judge A. J. Pater yesterday for striking Kolodzik with a mace. The judge said it was natural for Koons to believe the other man was armed and might harm him. Kolodzik, former police chief, is interested financially in a private detective agency here, it was disclosed.

Sea Plane Kills Bathers at "Coney"

Later in the day another plane owned by the same transport company, in attempting to land on the water in a fog, killed two men in a rowboat in the same locality as the first accident occurred.

PURPOSE OF BANKER WHO MULCTED BANKS MAY BE SUCCESSFUL

Telluride Bank To Benefit From Scheme

NEW CASTLE, Wyo., Sept. 12.—Legal entanglements threatened today to defeat the law itself and accomplish the aim of the Robin Hood scheme which Charles Delos Waggoner, Telluride, Colo., bank president, contends was the motive for the $500,000 swindle he executed in Wall Street.

Conflict between state and federal authorities and the banking laws may end in the retention by the Telluride bank of the $500,000 which the bank president obtained on faked telegrams from six New York banks. In such case, there were indications that Waggoner's scheme of stealing from eastern concerns to repay his investors' losses might be completed despite his arrest and possible imprisonment.

Waggoner's plot, according to his confession, was based on a desire to have eastern interest pay for the losses of his investors, which he said was brought about by the closing down of large mines in the Telluride district, owned by the eastern interests and the withdrawal of deposits by the owners of the mining properties.

There appears to be widespread fear that Waggoner has perpetrated the "perfect financial crime." Money that the western banker got in the effete east now reposes, and, with a certain amount of security for the present, in his depository at Telluride, where he said he hopes to see it paid out to depositors and other creditors who were "hard hit when the bottom fell out of things down there."

Lawyers who have been asked if Waggoner's scheme was not "perfect" admit there is a strong possibility the New York banks may never regain their money.

Also there is facing many of those who would make the banker pay for his audacity, the problem of proving where the offense was committed—in Colorado or in New York.

The new "wolf of Wall Street," who virtually set his own trap by registering under his own name and openly living at a resort east of here apparently is the least concerned of any involved. His only desire now is to "get it over with." He is prepared to spend the rest of his life in prison, he said, and hinted he might not even hire a lawyer in defense.

He is waiting in a cell at the county jail here, where he was taken Tuesday night after his arrest. A warrant charging use of the mails to defraud may be served on him today if copies of the complaints made against him in New York reach here in time. Otherwise, the warrant will not be issued until tomorrow and the arraignment here, with resultant fixing of bond, will follow.

This was a new day and it was made brighter for the "hill billy" who gave Gotham a banking lesson Mrs. Waggoner and Delos, the son of the couple, were to arrive today from Denver, where they had been living "quietly" during the nationwide hunt for husband and father. Both talked by telephone to the banker yesterday and both are standing solidly behind the head of the family who insists that he "only dared to help his friends and fellow-townsmen."

Today, Waggoner, seemingly still relieved that the chase it over, "because it was getting on his nerves," would not comment on his present ability or desire to make bond, nor would he say that he hesitated to return to New York immediately and see "what those bankers back there are going to do about it."

GROCER SUICIDES

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 12.—Coroner Murphy rendered a verdict of grocery store yesterday.

A pistol lying partly under Kennedy's body was identified by Mrs. Kennedy as the property of her husband. One bullet had been discharged.

STRIKING CARMEN REJECT PLAN FOR SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTE

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 12.—New Orleans faced indefinite prolongation of its street car strike and a possible new reign of violence today, with the rejection of a settlement plan, the bombing of a street car and the police use of tear bombs overnight.

A few hours after strikers by a vote of 1009 to eighty-seven rejected a tentative agreement to return to work, a street car was blown from the tracks and partly wrecked by a bomb.

Strikebreakers operating the car were uninjured but a crowd of men, women and children gathered about them, jeering. Police, heavily patroling the streets to guard against such occurrences as a result of the strikers' vote, threw tear gas bombs to disperse the noise makers.

Acting Mayor T. M. Walmsley, who was present, upbraided the police for their action and ordered an immediate investigation.

"It was a public disgrace to the police," he said. "I saw one bomb explode in front of a woman with a baby in her arms."

Hundreds of workers, jobless and in dire want ever since the walkout June 2, milled in front of the union offices and cheered the announcement that the settlement had been rejected.

The agreement on which they turned thumbs down was signed in New York nine days ago by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor and General Manager A. B. Patterson of the New Orleans Street Car Company. It was approved by W. D. Mahon, national president of the Carmen's Union.

The strikers refused to accept the agreement because of the allegedly vague wording of a section which said they would be employed "as conditions permit."

Edward Peyroux, president of the Carmen's Local, said the men wanted to return to work at once and that the tentative agreement gave them no security to this effect. He added the strikers would be glad to assume their old jobs if the company assured immediate re-employment.

Public excitement was tense as the vote was taken on ending the transportation impasse of seventy-three days which has inconvenienced thousands, caused three deaths in riots and resulted in burning and bombing of street cars.

Police kept crowds moving on congested streets during the evening. Sensing possible disorder, few persons rode the cars, while many took to the strikers' jitneys.

DUCE YIELDS SIX OFFICES

ROME, Sept. 12.—Premier Benito Mussolini startled the political world today by giving up six of his cabinet posts and distributing them among his under-secretaries.

The portfolios given up by the Italian dictator were for foreign affairs, war, marine, air, colonies and labor. He retained two cabinet posts besides his premiership—those of public works and interior.

Thus Dino Grandi became minister for foreign affairs; M. De Bono for colonies; General Pietro Gazzera became minister for war; Giuseppe Striani became minister of marine; Italo Balbo was named minister of aviation and former Under-secretary Bottai became the new secretary for labor and corporations.

Deputy Balbino Giuliano was appointed minister of education to replace Giuseppe Beluzzo, and henceforth the post wil be called the national education department.

WILL ARRAIGN MAN FOR FATHER'S DEATH

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 12—Benjamin Scanlon, 26, was to be arraigned today in municipal court on a first degree murder charge.

Scanlon shot and killed his father James Scanlon, 56, Tuesday evening, because, he told police, his father abused his mother.

Members of the Scanlon family indicated today they would aid the slayer and said they expected to furnish him with counsel.

JUDGE REFUSES TO ACCEPT FINDING

DAYTON, O., Sept. 12.—Robert C. Patterson, common pleas judge, refused late yesterday to accept the report of the special session of the April grand jury, which found Col. George I. Gunckel "entirely innocent" of allegations made by Joseph V. Hirsch, that he shared in the embezzlement from Memorial Hall of more than $16,000.

BEETHAM MAY RESIGN DRY POST BECAUSE OF LOSING BANK OFFICE

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 12.—Reports that he intends to resign in the near future as state prohibition commissioner were denied today by Commissioner Rupert R. Beetham, of Cadiz.

Beetham denied that he has any intention of resigning at the present. He left the impression, however, that his plans are by no means uncertain.

"I have no present intention of resigning," Beetham asserted. Then, with a smile, he added: "But my intentions might change overnight."

When Beetham was appointed last January by Governor Cooper, the rumor was current that he accepted the post only temporarily with the understanding that he eventually would be made superintendent of banks.

Announcement Tuesday of the selection of State Representative O. C. Gray, of Cadiz, as banking superintendent, was followed by a report that Beetham was "fed up with his job," and intended to resign as dry chief.

TORTURE WARD BOSS AFTER KIDNAPING; RETALIATION SEEN

Opponent Is Slain Ten Days Ago In Similar Manner

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Ten days after the murder of his political opponent, Charles S. Brown, 35, ward leader, was kidnaped, tortured and shot to death last night.

Brown's body, the skull pierced by a dozen bullets, was thrown to the street from an automobile on the west side shortly before midnight. Deep gashes on the forehead and bruises on the body indicated the politician had been tortured for several hours. Police said the bullets apparently were fired into the man's head as he lay on the floor of the touring car pleading with his captors.

Brown was a precinct captain for Alderman Dorsey Crowe in the Forty-Second ward during the last aldermanic election. Henry Connors, the Forty-second ward leader for Richard R. Prendergast, Alderman Crowe's opponent, was assassinated ten days ago in a northside cafe.

Police were convinced Brown's murder was in direct retaliation for Connor's death. Prendergast, himself, told police that enemies made by his political activities probably accounted for Connor's death.

Several persons heard the shots which killed Brown and saw his body tossed from the rear of the touring car into the street. Brown's friends had not seen him since early afternoon leading to the belief that he had been kidnaped and carried on a torture ride for several hours before he was killed.

CONGRESSMAN DIES IN COTTAGE FIRE

ST. PAUL, Sept. 12.—The death of Representative D. J. Kvale in a lake cottage fire near Fergus Falls may open the door for the return to congress of Andrew J. Volstead.

Although the "father of the national enforcement act" has repeatedly indicated in the past few years that his mission in congress was done and that he had no desire to replace the man who deefated him, there were many who believed Volstead might be persuaded to accept the vacant post.

Volstead, at present legal advisor to the northwest prohibition district declared that he was not interested in congressional races now, but he did not say definitely that he would not be a candidate.

Kvale died Tuesday night when his cottage was ignited either by a gasoline stove or kerosene lamp. His body was not definitely identified until late Wednesday. He became a Minnesota representative in 1922 when he defeated Volstead by about 14,000 votes.

CONDEMNED KILLER APPEALS FROM CELL

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 12.—Governor Conley today had a petition for clemency asked by Millard F. Morrison, scheduled to die Friday night at the state penitentiary at Moundsville for the murder last May in Kanawha County of Frank Bowen.

Morrison wrote the letter asking clemency from his death cell. It was relayed to the governor by James M. Mason, Morrison's counsel. In the letter Morrison declares he is innocent and adds "they are about to kill me for something I never did."

Morrison and Walter E. Willmot, both of Elizabeth, N. J., are scheduled to die on the same night.

Governor Conley is awaiting a report from Dr. L. V. Guthrie of the State Hospital for Insane at Huntington, before passing on an appeal for clemency for Willmot.

Anniversary Dinner Is Held At Jobe Store

MR. CHARLES L. JOBE, former owner of the Jobe Bros. department store, Mrs. Jobe, and Mrs. Thomas Gilroy (Elsie Weber) former head of the ready-to-wear department, were honor guests at a delightful anniversary dinner given by the present management on the third floor of the store Wednesday evening.

The dinner was arranged to commemorate the forty years that Mr. Jobe was associated with the store, plus the one year under the new management, and officially inaugurated an anniversary sale which will be started Saturday. The room where the dinner was served was beautifully decorated in early fall flowers and autumn leaves, and an autumn color scheme of brown and tan was carried out throughout the dinner and its appointments.

The tables were laid in the form of "U" with places for twenty-seven. A small birthday cake and a candle at each place represented the forty years of Mr. Jobe's ownership of the store and a large candle in the center of the table, marked the one year the store has passed under the present ownership.

The guests were welcomed by Mr. E. Earl Mann, present general manager of the store, following the dinner. He explained that the dinner was arranged to celebrate the association of employes together under the first year of the new management, and expressed the pleasure of the group at having the honor guests present for the occasion. He also took occasion to acquaint employes with plans for the "forty plus one" anniversary sale which opens Saturday.

Mr. Jobe recalled the history of the store under his ownership, in a brief address following Mr. Mann. He began the business that has grown into the present Jobe Bros., store in February, 1888 and for two years the firm was known as Jobe, Hardy and Co. In 1890 Mr. Jobe's brother, the late Mr. Riley Jobe, joined the firm and it became known as Jobe Brothers. Until 1907 the business was conducted in the west half of the present store room. In that year the east room was taken over and joined by arches, this arrangement being continued until the building was remodelled into the present handsome quarters several years ago. Mr. Jobe expressed his delight in being among his former employes again.

Mr. A. D. Chamberlain amused the guests with an account of an occasion when he called at the store as a salesman for Marshall Field and Co. The day being hot and Mr. Jobe being busy, he filled the water cooler with lemonade to the delight of the store employes. The idea, he said, was not received so warmly by Mr. Jobe.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Jobe, Mrs. Elsie Weber Gilroy, Mr. E. Earl Mann, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Chamberlain, Mrs. Lucy Keiter, Miss Thelma Keiter, Miss Mary Langan, Mrs. Lucile Cowan, Miss Alice Whittington, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Richards, Mrs. C. E. Payne, Miss Elizabeth Stevenson, Miss Alice Rinck, Mrs. James Canaday, Mrs. Edward Lauman, Miss Ruth Bradley, Miss Reva Harner, Miss Dorothy Lunsford, Miss Dorothy Strain, Mrs. Hattie Irwin, Miss Mary Gallagher, Miss Kate Langan and Mrs. Esther Wilson, Mr. Walter Jobe, York, Pa., nephew of Mr. Jobe and Mr. Karl Bloom, son-in-law of Mr. Jobe and former manager of the store, were both unable to be present at the dinner party.

BRITISH BARBERS CALM; YANK WILL GET ENGLISH CUT

LONDON, Sept. 12.—William F. Kenny's subtle insult to Great Britain's tonsorial art was partly forgiven by the barbers here today when the word spread that the New York millionaire finally had fliven in and had his hair cut in London—and by a London barber.

And the forgiveness became complete when it was learned that Louis Arico, Kenny's favorite barber who had been summoned from New York on the Leviathan to give the rich man's almost bald head a "decent" shearing, would follow suit himself and get a British haircut.

Arico is nothing if not a diplomat. And so, when the British barbers were all in a froth of bitterness over his portended invitations of their field, he wirelessed the United Press as follows:

"From past experiences I have found the British barbers most efficient artists in their line. I never have made any statements to the contrary. If any have been published they have been faked.

"This trip is a reward for several years of faithful work I have done for Mr. Kenny and he is giving me this trip as a part of my vacation.

"I expect to visit the London shops during my stay, and get a haircut. I hope to learn some of their best methods, time permitting."

Thus did Louis, with the tact born of years of easy conversation behind his barber chair, warm the hearts of his conferees in London.

SCOUTS WILL TELL OF EXPERIENCES AT BRITISH JAMBOREE

All Greene County Boy Scouts are to have an opportunity to hear the experiences of two Springfield Scouts who attended the international Boy Scout jamboree at Burkenhead, England this summer as representatives of Tecumseh Council.

The two Scouts will be present at a meeting arranged for 7:30 o'clock Friday night, September 20 in the council ring near the Scout cabin north of Cox Athletic Field, to which members of all Greene County troops are invited. A special invitation to attend has been extended to Scouts of Fairfield, Jamestown, Yellow Springs and New Burlington. All boys who would be interested in hearing the two Scouts are also urged to be present.

The two Scouts who will be guests at the meeting are John Cooley, 17, member of Troop No. 4, who is an Eagle Scout with a bronze palm, indicating that he has received five additional merit badges above the requisite number to make him eligible for his Eagle rating, and Elden Bailey, 14, a member of Troop No. 3.

Of the 1,400 American Scouts who attended the jamboree, Cooley was one of four boys selected as Rover Scouts by English officials. The two were in a contingent of twenty Scouts, of which eighteen were from Dayton.

They will appear at the meeting in their official jamboree uniforms and will relate their experiences.

THREE-CORNERED FIGHT LOOMS FOR SEAT IN CONGRESS

Attorney Leroy T. Marshall, former state senator and political leader of Xenia, is being announced as a candidate for the Republican nomination for representative to congress from the Seventh Ohio district indicating the possibility of a lively battle for next year when Congressman Charles Brand, Urbana, comes up once more for renomination and election.

It is understood that advance preparations for a predicted contest at the 1930 primary election are being made in the district both by Brand's supporters and by his opponents, but Attorney Marshall has no comment to make on his candidacy, neither affirming nor denying the possibility.

Political circles also received word that Probate Judge Harry G. Gram, Springfield, is also considering entering the race, making it a three-cornered affair.

Friends of the Xenia attorney claim to have lined up Greene, Fayette and Clinton Counties for him and are convinced of the possibility of making inroads into Madison and Clark in his favor. Brand's supporters assert the congressman is certain to receive a plurality in Champaign, Logan, Union and Clark.

Although it is considered certain that before the fight is over the national Republican organization will be actively interested in the contest one way or another, for the present national leaders, it is said, will adopt a "hands off" policy.

BRITISH BARBERS CALM; YANK WILL GET ENGLISH CUT

LONDON, Sept. 12.—William F. Kenny's subtle insult to Great Britain's tonsorial art was partly forgiven by the barbers here today when the word spread that the New York millionaire finally had fiiven in and had his hair cut in London—and by a London barber.

And the forgiveness became complete when it was learned that Louis Arico, Kenny's favorite barber who had been summoned from New York on the Leviathan to give the rich man's almost bald head a "decent" shearing, would follow suit himself and get a British haircut.

Arico is nothing if not a diplomat. And so, when the British barbers were all in a froth of bitterness over his portended invitations of their field, he wirelessed the United Press as follows:

"From past experiences I have found the British barbers most efficient artists in their line. I never have made any statements to the contrary. If any have been published they have been faked.

"This trip is a reward for several years of faithful work I have done for Mr. Kenny and he is giving me this trip as a part of my vacation.

"I expect to visit the London shops during my stay, and get a haircut. I hope to learn some of their best methods, time permitting."

Thus did Louis, with the tact born of years of easy conversation behind his barber chair, warm the hearts of his conferees in London.

SCOUTS WILL TELL OF EXPERIENCES AT BRITISH JAMBOREE

All Greene County Boy Scouts are to have an opportunity to hear the experiences of two Springfield Scouts who attended the international Boy Scout jamboree at Burkenhead, England this summer as representatives of Tecumseh Council.

The two Scouts will be present at a meeting arranged for 7:30 o'clock Friday night, September 20 in the council ring near the Scout cabin north of Cox Athletic Field, to which members of all Greene County troops are invited. A special invitation to attend has been extended to Scouts of Fairfield, Jamestown, Yellow Springs and New Burlington. All boys who would be interested in hearing the two Scouts are also urged to be present.

The two Scouts who will be guests at the meeting are John Cooley, 17, member of Troop No. 4, who is an Eagle Scout with a bronze palm, indicating that he has received five additional merit badges above the requisite number to make him eligible for his Eagle rating, and Elden Bailey, 14, a member of Troop No. 3.

Of the 1,400 American Scouts who attended the jamboree, Cooley was one of four boys selected as Rover Scouts by English officials. The two were in a contingent of twenty Scouts, of which eighteen were from Dayton.

They will appear at the meeting in their official jamboree uniforms and will relate their experiences.

THREE-CORNERED FIGHT LOOMS FOR SEAT IN CONGRESS

Attorney Leroy T. Marshall, former state senator and political leader of Xenia, is being announced as a candidate for the Republican nomination for representative to congress from the Seventh Ohio district indicating the possibility of a lively battle for next year when Congressman Charles Brand, Urbana, comes up once more for renomination and election.

It is understood that advance preparations for a predicted contest at the 1930 primary election are being made in the district both by Brand's supporters and by his opponents, but Attorney Marshall has no comment to make on his candidacy, neither affirming nor denying the possibility.

Political circles also received word that Probate Judge Harry G. Gram, Springfield, is also considering entering the race, making it a three-cornered affair.

Friends of the Xenia attorney claim to have lined up Greene, Fayette and Clinton Counties for him and are convinced of the possibility of making inroads into Madison and Clark in his favor. Brand's supporters assert the congressman is certain to receive a plurality in Champaign, Logan, Union and Clark.

Although it is considered certain that before the fight is over the national Republican organization will be actively interested in the contest one way or another, for the present national leaders, it is said, will adopt a "hands off" policy.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE SOUL'S VALUE — What is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?—Matthew 16:26.

SIX MONTHS OF HOOVER

The consensus of editorial opinion on the first six months of Mr. Hoover's administration is that he is, at any rate, a good starter. That is to his credit. A man who never starts never arrives. There is naturally, however, an inclination to wait and see where all this starting ends before passing judgment on the new chief executive.

What is already obvious is that Mr. Hoover has brought to the administration more of what is commonly called business methods than any of his predecessors did. The White House for the first time in its history has the air of a board room. Whether this will work out as successfully in political business as in private business remains to be demonstrated. A number of startlingly modern suggestions have been dropped for the nation to ponder. A number of commissions have been appointed to study important public questions. At the end of four years we shall know more about the value of these early promises.

The men whom Mr. Hoover has selected to aid him at home and abroad are of various calibers. A good deal depends on these aides. Some of them are big men. Some are mediocre. They can't give more than there is in them. What the administration accomplishes in the next three and a half years will play a larger part in fixing its place in history than will its achievements during the last six months. A great deal will depend on appointments yet to be made; and it is right here that the politicians can assist Mr. Hoover by not urging upon him the resignation of men unfitted for office, with no loftier object than to serve their own political ends.

It appears that a lumberman in the region of the Soo caught a timber wolf with his bare hands, and dragged it into camp by the neck. He must be a descendant of the breed that ate raw wildcat for dinner.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK—This is the time of year when the out-of-town buyers invade the metropolis. Of course the buyers don't actually figure it out so that they arrive here when the theaters are again bursting into bloom and the Big Town is snapping out of its summer flannels for the work-a-day raiment of autumn. It just happens that way, that's all.

CHINESE LIKE TELEPHONES

New York's Chinatown is grouped in a radius of four blocks contiguous to the start of the Bowery. In this labyrinth of crazy little streets three thousand "gentle, yellow pirates," as Kipling calls 'em, pursue their domestic, social and commercial activities. They are permanent residents there who have invested heavily in real estate in their own neighborhood and seldom invade other parts of town. They are perfectly happy in their own little red-and-blue tinted arc; and the only lemon seed in their rickey is the sporadic visit of the lumbering sight-seeing bus with its cargo of goggle-eyed tourists.

The average Chinese falls heavily for the telephone. There are about 300 Chinese phone listings and the traffic on the instruments is constant. Little neighborly chats, talks about the weather are standard reasons for the Chinese to use the handy instrument. They go both night and day. An especially busy time is right after the Chinese theater "breaks," around midnight. From then until 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning they call their friends on the wire and gossip about life and love and everything under the stars. It's a delightful way of swapping "sweet nothings"—reclining in bed, with tea and cake adjacent, and puffing at a tiny pipe.

KITCHENS DISAPPEARING

Day by day science prunes something from man's already beggarly status. It does everything for the home except hold it together.

This mournful wail is provoked by word that in 25 years there won't be a home kitchen left in New York. Apartments will be built without them. Steaks and chops will be sold already cooked. Every residential building will have a food shop and dumbwaiters will have heated compartments for the delivery of hot foods.

Think of it, going to do away with the kitchen—symbol of "home and mother"—the kitchen, with all its flavors, fragrances, melodies and symphonies!

You can bet a homemade doughnut against one of Mrs. Child's buttercakes that the bird who conceived this innovation never heard Bert Williams, dead and gone now, sing: 'Pork chops fryin' in de pan—dat's da'mony!"

No man who ever heard that song would ever do away with the home kitchen.

THE TRICK

Broadway's newest clothing shop is constructed after the fashion of an English manor house. Nowhere on display is there evidence of the kind of business that is conducted there. Goods are carefully concealed in cabinets and are brought out only on request. The first floor is a copy of the hall at Hatfield House, England, done in oak and wormy chestnut. The idea of the thing—although it's a men's shop—is to cater to women.

"For," says the astute proprietor, "I have learned the importance of catering to women in everything. More and more they buy the clothes for their men!"

WHAT'LL HAPPEN NEXT

Before prohibition hit town, they knew it was spring in New York when the old bock beer sign appeared in the window of the corner saloon, and the wicker half doors went up.

Later, the circus — Ringling Brothers, Barnum Bailey—moving into Madison Square Garden became the official harbinger of the vernal season.

THREE SHADOWS

I LOOKED and saw your eyes in the shadow of your hair,
As a traveler sees the stream in the shadow of the wood;
And I said, "My faint heart sighs, ah, me! to linger there,
To drink deep and to dream in that sweet solitude."

I looked and saw your heart in the shadow of your eyes,
As a seeker sees the gold in the shadow of the stream;
And I said, "Ah, me! what art should win the immortal prize,
Whose want must make life cold and Heaven a hollow dream?"

I looked and saw your love in the shadow of your heart,
As a diver sees the pearl in the shadow of the sea,
And I murmured, not above my breath, but all apart—
"Ah! you can love, true girl, and is your love for me?"

—Dante G. Rossetti (1828-1882)

THE WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

WORKING IT OUT

The Rev. Dr. James Empringham used to be pastor of a fashionable city church. Later he was an executive for the Anti-Saloon league. Later he was an anti-prohibitionist. Later he conducted a school for health education. He has been having troubles of one kind and another. Now he writes a letter to Bishop Manning, Episcopal bishop of New York, and says: "I am more than ever convinced that Christianity as interpreted by men of your school is not only a preposterous lie, but a hindrance and a curse to humanity, productive of untold misery and immorality—as, for example, your unchristian stand against the divorce and re-marriage of mismated couples."

Nothing the matter with Christianity, but a great deal the matter with the manner in which many of us pretend to work it out. Nothing preposterous about a way of life which is superior to anything the world has known. But there is much stumbling on the way.

GETTING AT CANCER

The medical world will be conservative but watchful in the matter of discoveries concerning cancer by Sokoloff, University of Prague. Sokoloff told physicians gathered in Boston that his remedy is based on the theory that cancer develops only in areas of the body where the supply of oxygen is scant and where there is also a disturbance of the endocrine glands. Sokoloff has experimented on 1,000 animals, injecting his compound. His experiments, he says, have been 70 per cent successful.

The work of turning back one of the great scourges of the human race goes on.

A FUTURE IN THE AIR

An Ohio newspaper reporter becomes an air pilot. Many reporters not particularly fitted for newspaper writing, will do well to look seriously at aviation as a career. Perhaps no business in the world today holds out more promise to the young man.

EXPERIMENTING

The Soviet government of Odessa bars bathing without suits in the Black Sea. This is something new for a Russian government, Russian rules and regulations, seem willing to try anything and everything once.

Perhaps the rest of the world can learn much by watching the field of experiment over there. Russians are not afraid to change their minds and they run all the way from extreme autocracy to less than democracy.

Who's Who and Timely Views

FEDERAL FARM BOARD SAID TO HAVE FIVE OBJECTS IN VIEW

By JAMES C. STONE

Member Federal Farm Board

(James Clifton Stone was born at Richmond, Ky., Jan. 3, 1878. He studied at Central University, Richmond, for three years. From 1896 to 1899 he was president of the Lexington Tobacco Warehouse company. He was a founder and president of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative association in 1921. He was recently appointed by President Hoover as a member of the federal farm board.)

The farm policy as enunciated by congress in the agricultural marketing act is to promote effective merchandising of agricultural products through farmer owned and farmer controlled associations.

To carry out this mandate the federal farm board has been clothed with broad authority and powers which are being exercised with care and caution as it is believed to be of the utmost importance that the board move in the right direction when it decides a question of policy.

As to the members of the farm board, all are in the fullest sympathy with efforts to better the farmer's economic position through co-operation.

Here are some of the objectives of the board:

1. The strengthening and expansion of existing co-operatives through assistance in developing sound managerial and financing policies. In this way unorganized farmers, it is hoped, will be afforded a practical demonstration of what can be done through united effort.

2. Bringing about the co-ordination of efforts on the part of co-operatives. In other words, to bring about the co-operation of co-operatives in various commodity groups, thus effecting merchandising economies, the net result of which will be to give the farmer a better return for his commodity without consequent injury to the consumer.

3. The assistance of growers in unorganized areas to develop sound plans and procedure for co-operative organizations.

4. The assistance of co-operatives in developing better business relationships with manufacturers, mills, processors and other users of farm commodities.

5. The assistance of the department of agriculture, state agricultural colleges, the extension service and other state and federal agencies in developing an effective educational program in co-operative marketing, thus informing not only the farmer-producer but the city consumer of benefits both are expected to enjoy from more efficient merchandising of the products of the farm.

The program of the board can be effectively carried out only through producer owned and producer controlled marketing associations. Under the law the board must deal with such associations, not with the individual farmers. The board can and is anxious to assist in the formulation of sound programs and policies for co-operatives, but the responsibility of organization and management rest with the producer himself. The board can move only as fast as the farmers themselves are willing to go.

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Conceptions of beuaty differ widely among different people of civilized eyes, the unfamiliar fashions of beauty in older, stranger lands look queer and meaningless often. We fnid them amusing even to contemplate.

The knowledge that "other days mean other ways" does not explain to us why, among the Aztecs, bizarre-shaped heads were the vogue. Yet these people found the shape of a natural, normal head uninteresting. They deformed the skulls of infants at an early age to make them look more "beautiful."

The primitive Africans, as well as some moderns, distorted the lips by means of odd devices. In some cases wooden skewers were thrust through them to give them a more emphatic outward twist. Some tribes of Africans prized the keloidal overgrowths that followed incised wounds. They inserted pieces of mineral and wood in such cuts to increase the scar-like overgrowths.

Some inhabitants of southern Africa, the Philippines and Central America, filed the teeth to points, or removed certain teeth as a beautifying operation; corrective dentistry of a distinctive kind.

In New Guinea the natives slashed themselves with scars which served as tribal markings of beauty and respect. And in New Zealand and other countries, especially Japan, the natives employed — and still do employ—the art of tattoo, a favorite form of personal adornment for centuries among some classes of seafaring Europeans, English and Americans, as well.

Excessively long fingernails handsomely guarded with jeweled shields, have been the proud possessions of generations of rich Chinese. And the tiny, crippled feet of the Chinese women of caste were a sign of both beauty and luxury, however, pathetic and hideously unnatural such an ideal of beauty may seem to us.

Let it be remembered that savage tribes of all countries, including our own America, have covered their faces with bright-hued paint, have worn jeweled trinkets and gay-colored feathers; and that, while these customs seem barbaric, remnants of their glory survive in the sophisticated fashions of our modern era.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Senator Robert B. Howell, of Nebraska, is the only Annapolis graduate in the upper house of congress.

It follows that he is a mighty influential member of the naval affairs committee. Meaning not the slightest disrespect to the other members, he knows more about navies than all of them put together.

However, far be it from the Nebraskan to say so.

On the contrary, it is possible to discuss sea power with him indefinitely without discovering that he ever trod a man-o-war's quarter deck as a professional—except that the extent of his practical information concerning fighting vessels soon became pretty noticeable.

Anyway, this corn belt lawmaker—from about as far inland as is practicable to get in the United States—is one of the best informed persons between Sandy Hook and the Farallones on all naval questions.

Naturally, he must have listened with keen interest to President Hoover's talk with Premier Ramsay MacDonald relative to an Anglo-American armament limitation agreement. True, he denies it—apparently thinks it might be interpreted as eavesdropping.

Nevertheless, I noticed that he seemed very familiar with every detail of the negotiations thus far.

Some senators freely express themselves as extremely fearful that Uncle Sam will be euchred as a final result of the naval game in progress between Washington and London.

The Nebraskan is not greatly worried.

"Old world diplomacy generally makes ours look foolish," he admitted, "but I hardly see how it can do so in the present instance.

"Our last naval bargain was struck at a time when it was necessary for us, if anyone, to make sacrifices. A bargain today would force Britain to cut down to our level, or leave us free to build up to hers—which certainly would not be reduction, but might be limitation."

Does it seem likely that Britain ever will scrap any of her still serviceable warships?—as America did.

"Perhaps not," answered the senator, "but maybe it would be worth our while to accept her promise not to replace a certain proportion of these vessels as they wear out—if she should make such an offer.

"To be sure, John Bull would thus continue to hold his lead over us for a few more years, but that probably would not greatly matter. It will be quite awhile before any of the 1914-1918 beligerents will sufficiently have recovered from the last war's stomachache to risk starting another one.

"Besides, we Americans are best disposed of all the nations to 'take a chance' for the sake of world peace."

Hints come from London of some plan to juggle tonnage reckonings so as to give actual naval superiority to Britain, while soothing American feelings by according to the United States a fictitious "paper" equality.

"I stand for parity," siad the senator, promptly, "—real parity; not on paper alone.

"That is, I stand for genuine, ton-for-ton Anglo-American parity as a permanent proposition — possibly without prejudice to an arrangement permitting to Britain a reasonable period of time to reduce to our proportions, instead of requiring her to reduce immediately, or necessitating a building program on our part to overtake her."

"But, senator," I suggested, "you have mentioned that our diplomacy is rather guileless. Is there no danger that an unequal standard of measurement might be 'put across' on it?"

"It surely would be revealed in the senate," returned the Nebraskan.

By Senator Howell?—for instance.

"There are senators, I am aware," he continued, "who take as their motto, 'Ours not to reason why, ours always to support the administration.' But not all of them—beyond a reasonable amount of team work. I do not believe a treaty with so unfair a clause in it could be ratified."

And then, with both sides disappointed, would not the situation be worse than ever?

"No; better, I think," said the Omaha legislator.

"A basis would have been furnished for negotiations involving less pure guess work. Diplomacy would have discovered, at least, what is could not accomplish, and could go ahead intelligently to evolve something sensible.

"Or, if not — well, the United States can stand present conditions as long as Great Britain can."

Buttered Green Beans Cabbage Salad
Whole Wheat Biscuits
Sliced Peaches and Ice Cream on Sponge Cake
Iced Tea

This menu was planned for two, but plenty wil be left over for serving either cold or warmed over another day.

Today's Recipes

Roast Pork Loin—Choose a kettle that is but slightly larger than the roast and fitted with a tight cover. Sear the roast well. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Add one cup hot water. Cover tightly and cook slowly on top of the stove about one and three-fourths hours. Be careful to replenish the water from time to time. Peel the potatoes, quarter and place around the roast during the last 30 to 40 minutes. Remove roast and potatoes when done. Make gravy of the liquor in the bottom of the kettle.

Wilted Lettuce—Fry two slices of bacon until crisp. Remove. Add one-fourth cup vinegar diluted with one-fourth cup water and heat to boiling point. Pour over the lettuce, cover tightly immediately and leave in warm place three or four minutes. Serve with bacon as garnish.

Cabbage Salad — One and one-half heads cabbage sliced, one-fourth pound white grapes seeded and halved, one-half green pepper diced; one-half red pepper, diced, one-fourth teaspoon salt, three to four tablespoons cooked salad dressing. Mix lightly with a fork and serve on lettuce leaves or in a bowl lined with lettuce and garnish with red or green pepper, hard boiled egg or strips of prunes if you have some cooked.

Children Will Like This BUTTERLESS CHOCOLATE CAKE

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)

Grate one small bar of unsweetened chocolate and cook with one cup milk until thick and smooth. Remove from stove; cool, and add one teaspoon vanilla. Beat the yolks of four eggs and one and three-fourths cups sugar together. Add to chocolate mixture. Add one cup flour sifted with two teaspoons baking powder. Mix well and then fold in the stiffy beaten whites of four eggs. Bake in three thin layers, which will be rather crisp. Put together with chocolate icing.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Tic or Habit-Spasm

"Dear Doctor: My son, aged 20 years, has a twitching of the eyes and mouth. This seems to happen when he is quiet for any length of time. The mouth twitches to the side, and when this happens on the right side, the outer corner of the right eye also twitches, or when it happens on the left side, it follows the same course. Should a physician be consulted? MRS. C."

Yes, Mrs. C., the malady your son suffers from is known as tic, or habit-spasm. These habit-spasms may be started from shock where the movement is used as a defense. For instance, in our medical literature is the history of a pugilist who was terrified by the explosion of a bomb dropped from a Zeppelin. He evidently made the movement of the shoulder and arm as if avoiding a blow and he continued this jerky movement and facial grimace such as a pugilist might make during a fight, even after the cause had been removed.

This is a reflex, defensive or voluntary movement, which has assumed an imperative character. It may consist of a single movement, an isolated tic, or of a number of movements of different muscles occurring at the same time, or in rapid succession, or it may be in the form of a general tic. There may be a "grinning tic," a "sucking tic," a "snuffing tic," a "licking tic," a "biting tic," a "scratching tic," a "nodding tic," a "hair pulling tic," etc.

The tics usually develop around puberty, or after, and usually in persons of unstable nervous systems from some cause. Injury, mental strain ,intoxication (this doesn't necessarily mean alcoholism, but toxemia, or poison in the blood, from some reason), are the exciting factors.

Tic differs from St. Vitus dance, or chorea, in that the movements are always the same stereotyped movements and always involve the same group or groups of muscles, while those of St. Vitus dance are never performed twice in the same way and are apt to be generalized. (Chorea is believed to be one of the manifestations of acute rheumatism in children, with an acute infection as the cause, coupled with malnourishment and anemia.)

The Freudian school of psychoanalysts believe that the tic is the expression of some suppressed purpose and it is a defense compromise which gives relief to the patient. Psychoanalysis has cured some patients.

I suggest you have your son thoroughly checked up by a competent physician, Mrs. C. See that his hygienic habits are normal. Then, if your doctor thinks it necessary, visit a specialist in psychiatry.

Mrs. T.—You are at the age where you can expect the menopause. (Our new pamphlet on the Hygiene of Women was sent you.) You should be examined, for it is quite obvious you have an inflammation of the bladder. Until you can see your physician, omit meats, fish and eggs from your diet, taking more milk, nuts and cheese for your protein; and cut down your breads and cereals, taking potatoes instead, for the starches. Eat liberally of the fruits and vegetables, and drink very freely of water. This will make your urine less concentrated, and will make it alkaline or neutral, so it won't be so irritating. (Ask also for our pamphlet on the Kidney and Bladder Diseases.)

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

A wife and mother asks my advice on the following:

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a married lady and my husband and I and girl are having to be away from our home on account of his work. The daughter is ready for high school and she doesn't want to stay here and go to school, and the husband insists that we must stay with him. Now what advice can you give me on this? Should I go back home to send daughter to school or should I stay here with husband? I want to do what is best for all of us.

"B. E. H."

Stay with husband, by all means. He is the provider for the family and should have his home where his work is and all the comforts of family life. Daughter is selfish in wanting to go to school in the old home town, and it is right she should make the sacrifice for the good of the family. I know it is hard to start school in a new home and among strangers, but sooner or later she will have to face life's little hardships, and she should begin to do her part toward the greatest good for the greatest number.

This sort of thing is a lesson in socializing that young people badly need. As long as mothers insist on making life easy for young folks, so long are they going to try, at least, to escape the disagreeables of life. They must be made to feel a sense of responsibility, and the earlier the better. The lack of this mars many a life. The young person—or the older one—who always takes the easiest way, without thinking of the sacrifices it involves to others, is not only going to give many a heartache to those with whom she or he lives, but is preparing for many a heartache and failure for herself. As long as daughter is dependent on her father for funds for her education she should accommodate herself to his needs.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: What would you think of a girl of 15, noted for sense beyond her age, an whose word is given only after careful consideration, saying she loves a boy and then acting 'not so hot' on the grounds that she wants to go out with a lot of boys and have a good (?) time? Would you call it just reaching adolescence or the influence of a parent who's been filling her young head with ideas? What course would you advise for the boy who loves her very much? HOPING."

Why not accept her decision. Hoping, and then give her such a good time and keep her so busy that she has very little time for other boys?

I have argued this thing over with young men before now and never have been able to convince them that the girl was in the right. They always maintain that the girl does not love them if she won't go "steady." And they are just as surprised and hurt as possible when she takes the stand that she wants to play around a bit until she is older. Often they will rather lose her friendship than accept it under such conditions. A girl of 15 is not old enough to be engaged, and she has very little experience with life. She should, in my estimation, play around a bit until she is older and knows her own mind—as much as anyone ever does. She has, as you say, "sense beyond her age." It may be a parent's influence that has made her so decide, or her own good judgment.

WHAT SHALL I DO?: As long as you have dates with other boys you would have no more right to ask the boy friend if he kisses the girl he dates goodnight than he would to ask you if you allow that liberty when you go out with others. It's hardly fair to try to get him to stop smoking when you do it occasionally yourself, it it? Tell him you do, if you wish, or stop it. If both the boys give you birthday presents, thank them both prettily. Send both greeting cards for Christmas, or if you send gifts, make them little, inexpensive things. It's not necessary to send the boy friend a birthday present unless you particularly wish to. Send him a card or letter of greeting instead.

Peter's Adventures

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

MOLASSES FOR THE ENEMY

Peter waited, to be sure he was not mistaken, the Chirper really was foaming at the mouth, and acting strangely. And he was about to call for Mrs. Cricket when Mr. Cricket turned to him:

"Don't be alarmed," murmured he. "I am not ill, nor crazy! I am just making ready to protect myself. Did you hear that whirring?"

"Did I?" Peter repeated Chirper's question. "I should say so! It was loud enough! What was it? I was afraid it meant that danger threatened you, and I was just about ready to yell for Mrs. Cricket. For goodness sakes, will you please tell me what that stuff is which you are spitting out of your mouth? It looks like molasses. Is it?"

"I am sure I don't know what molasses is," said he. "What I am making is a juice that will make the birds keep away from me. That whirring we just heard was made by a bird. Listen! There it goes again. A bird is coming toward me. But he will not come too near. I will smear him with this if he tries to touch me, and he will decide to let me alone, take my word for it."

"I should think he had better!" exclaimed Peter. "It doesn't look very pretty, and it doesn't smell very good. Certainly I should hate to have you squirt any of it on me."

"Then all is exactly as it should be!" declared Chirper. "There what did I tell you? That bird, by hook or crook, must have discovered that I was all ready for him, and knowing when he was well off, he has flown away on other business You can see for yourself, he has disappeared. But look, boy! Who comes there? If my eyes do not deceive me, some stranger over yonder is waving to attract our attention. I am quite positive I never saw the chap before. He must mean you. From this distance he looks like a Bee, but I do not know many Bees. See, he is beckoning again. If you know who he is you may know what he wants! I'm sure I don't!"

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE SOUL'S VALUE — What is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?—Matthew 16:26.

SIX MONTHS OF HOOVER

The consensus of editorial opinion on the first six months of Mr. Hoover's administration is that he is, at any rate, a good starter. That is to his credit. A man who never starts never arrives. There is naturally, however, an inclination to wait and see where all this starting ends before passing judgment on the new chief executive.

What is already obvious is that Mr. Hoover has brought to the administration more of what is commonly called business methods than any of his predecessors did. The White House for the first time in its history has the air of a board room. Whether this will work out as successfully in political business as in private business remains to be demonstrated. A number of startlingly modern suggestions have been dropped for the nation to ponder. A number of commissions have been appointed to study important public questions. At the end of four years we shall know more about the value of these early promises.

The men whom Mr. Hoover has selected to aid him at home and abroad are of various calibers. A good deal depends on these aides. Some of them are big men. Some are mediocre. They can't give more than there is in them. What the administration accomplishes in the next three and a half years will play a larger part in fixing its place in history than will its achievements during the last six months. A great deal will depend on appointments yet to be made; and it is right here that the politicians can assist Mr. Hoover by not urging upon him the resignation of men unfitted for office, with no loftier object than to serve their own political ends.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK—This is the time of year when the out-of-town buyers invade the metropolis. Of course the buyers don't actually figure it out so that they arrive here when the theaters are again bursting into bloom and the Big Town is snapping out of its summer flannels for the work-a-day raiment of autumn. It just happens that way, that's all.

CHINESE LIKE TELEPHONES

New York's Chinatown is grouped in a radius of four blocks contiguous to the start of the Bowery. In this labyrinth of crazy little streets three thousand "gentle, yellow pirates," as Kipling calls 'em, pursue their domestic, social and commercial activities. They are permanent residents there who have invested heavily in real estate in their own neighborhood and seldom invade other parts of town. They are perfectly happy in their own little red-and-blue tinted arc; and the only lemon seed in their rickey is the sporadic visit of the lumbering sight-seeing bus with its cargo of goggle-eyed tourists.

The average Chinese falls heavily for the telephone. There are about 300 Chinese phone listings and the traffic on the instruments is constant. Little neighborly chats, talks about the weather are standard reasons for the Chinese to use the handy instrument. They go both night and day. An especially busy time is right after the Chinese theater "breaks," around midnight. From then until 3 or 4 o'clock in the morning they call their friends on the wire and gossip about life and love and everything under the stars. It's a delightful way of swapping "sweet nothings"—reclining in bed, with tea and cake adjacent, and puffing at a tiny pipe.

KITCHENS DISAPPEARING

Day by day science prunes something from man's already beggarly status. It does everything for the home except hold it together.

This mournful wail is provoked by word that in 25 years there won't be a home kitchen left in New York. Apartments will be built without them. Steaks and chops will be sold already cooked. Every residential building will have a food shop and dumbwaiters will have heated compartments for the delivery of hot foods.

Think of it, going to do away with the kitchen—symbol of "home and mother"—the kitchen, with all its flavors, fragrances, melodies and symphonies!

You can bet a homemade doughnut against one of Mrs. Child's buttercakes that the bird who conceived this innovation never heard Bert Williams, dead and gone now, sing: 'Pork chops fryin' in de pan—dat's ca'mony!"

No man who ever heard that song would ever do away with the home kitchen.

THE TRICK

Broadway's newest clothing shop is constructed after the fashion of an English manor house. Nowhere on display is there evidence of the kind of business that is conducted there. Goods are carefully concealed in cabinets and are brought out only on request. The first floor is a copy of the hall at Hatfield House, England, done in oak and wormy chestnut. The idea of the thing—although it's a men's shop—is to cater to women.

"For," says the astute proprietor, "I have learned the importance of catering to women in everything. More and more they buy the clothes for their men!"

WHAT'LL HAPPEN NEXT

Before prohibition hit town, they knew it was spring in New York when the old bock beer sign appeared in the window of the corner saloon, and the wicker half doors went up.

Later, the circus — Ringling Brothers, Barnum Bailey—moving into Madison Square Garden became the official harbinger of the vernal season.

THREE SHADOWS

I LOOKED and saw your eyes in the shadow of your hair,
As a traveler sees the stream in the shadow of the wood.
And I said, "My faint heart sighs, ah, me! to linger there,
To drink deep and to dream in that sweet solitude."

I looked and saw your heart in the shadow of your eyes,
As a seeker sees the gold in the shadow of the stream;
And I said, "Ah, me! what art should win the immortal prize,
Whose want must make life cold and Heaven a hollow dream?"

I looked and saw your love in the shadow of your heart,
As a diver sees the pearl in the shadow of the sea,
And I murmured, not above my breath, but all apart—
"Ah! you can love, true girl, and is your love for me?"

THE WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

WORKING IT OUT

The Rev. Dr. James Empringham used to be pastor of a fashionable city church. Later he was an executive for the Anti-Saloon league. Later he was an anti-prohibitionist. Later he conducted a school for health education. He has been having troubles of one kind and another. Now he writes a letter to Bishop Manning, Episcopal bishop of New York, and says: "I am more than ever convinced that Christianity as interpreted by men of your school is not only a preposterous lie, but a hindrance and a curse to humanity, productive of untold misery and immorality—as, for example, your unchristian stand against the divorce and re-marriage of mismated couples."

Nothing the matter with Christianity, but a great deal the matter with the manner in which many of us pretend to work it out. Nothing preposterous about a way of life which is superior to anything the world has known. But there is much stumbling on the way.

GETTING AT CANCER

The medical world will be conservative but watchful in the matter of discoveries concerning cancer by Sokoloff, University of Prague. Sokoloff told physicians gathered in Boston that his remedy is based on the theory that cancer develops only in areas of the body where the supply of oxygen is scant and where there is also a disturbance of the endocrine glands. Sokoloff has experimented on 1,000 animals, injecting his compound. His experiments, he says, have been 70 per cent successful.

The work of turning back one of the great scourges of the human race goes on.

A FUTURE IN THE AIR

An Ohio newspaper reporter becomes an air pilot. Many reporters not particularly fitted for newspaper writing, will do well to look seriously at aviation as a career. Perhaps no business in the world today holds out more promise to the young man.

EXPERIMENTING

The Soviet government of Odessa bars bathing without suits in the Black Sea. This is something new for a Russian government, Russian rules and regulations, seem willing to try anything and everything once.

Perhaps the rest of the world can learn much by watching the field of experiment over there. Russians are not afraid to change their minds and they run all the way from extreme autocracy to less than democracy.

Who's Who and Timely Views

FEDERAL FARM BOARD SAID TO HAVE FIVE OBJECTS IN VIEW

By JAMES C. STONE
Member Federal Farm Board

(James Clifton Stone was born at Richmond, Ky., Jan. 3, 1878. He studied at Central University, Richmond, for three years. From 1896 to 1899 he was president of the Lexington Tobacco Warehouse company. He was a founder and president of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative association in 1921. He was recently appointed by President Hoover as a member of the federal farm board.)

The farm policy as enunciated by congress in the agricultural marketing act is to promote effective merchandising of agricultural products through farmer owned and farmer controlled associations.

To carry out this mandate the federal farm board has been clothed with broad authority and powers which are being exercised with care and caution as it is believed to be of the utmost importance that the board move in the right direction when it decides a question of policy.

As to the members of the farm board, all are in the fullest sympathy with efforts to better the farmer's economic position through co-operation.

Here are some of the objectives of the board:

1. The strengthening and expansion of existing co-operatives through assistance in developing sound managerial and financing policies. In this way unorganized farmers, it is hoped, will be afforded a practical demonstration of what can be done through united effort.

2. Bringing about the co-ordination of efforts on the part of co-operatives. In other words, to bring about the co-operation of co-operatives in various commodity groups, thus effecting merchandising economies, the net result of which will be to give the farmer a better return for his commodity without consequent injury to the consumer.

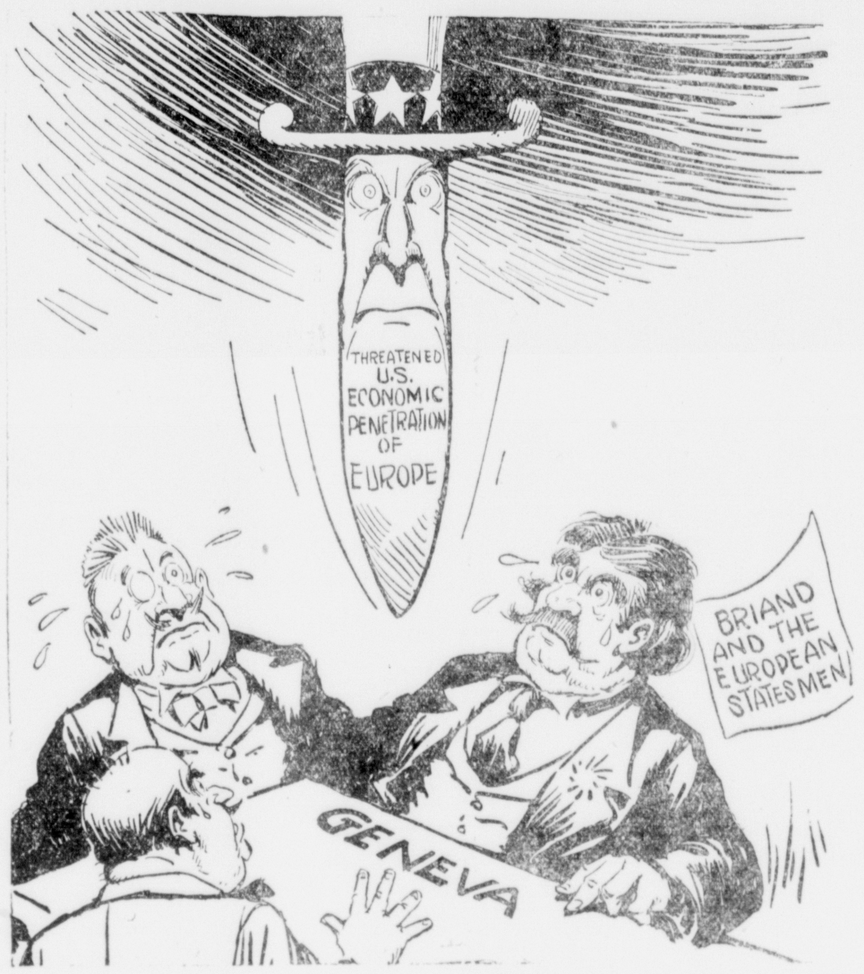

3. The assistance of growers in unorganized areas to develop sound plans and procedure for co-operative organizations.

4. The assistance of co-operatives in developing better business relationships with manufacturers, mills, processors and other users of farm commodities.

5. The assistance of the department of agriculture, state agricultural colleges, the extension service and other state and federal agencies in developing an effective educational program in co-operative marketing, thus informing not only the farmer-producer but the city consumer of benefits both are expected to enjoy from more efficient merchandising of the products of the farm.

The program of the board can be effectively carried out only through producer owned and producer controlled marketing associations. Under the law the board must deal with such associations, not with the individual farmers. The board can and is anxious to assist in the formulation of sound programs and policies for co-operatives, but the responsibility of organization and management rest with the producer himself. The board can move only as fast as the farmers themselves are willing to go.

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Conceptions of beauty differ widely among different people of civilized eyes, the unfamiliar fashions of beauty in older, stranger lands look queer and meaningless often. We find them amusing even to contemplate.

The knowledge that "other days mean other ways" does not explain to us why, among the Aztecs, bizarre-shaped heads were the vogue. Yet these people found the shape of a natural, normal head uninteresting. They deformed the skulls of infants at an early age to make them look more "beautiful."

The primitive Africans, as well as some moderns, distorted the lips by means of odd devices. In some cases wooden skewers were thrust through them to give them a more emphatic outward twist. Some tribes of Africans prized the keloidal overgrowths that folowed incised wounds. They inserted pieces of mineral and wood in such cuts to increase the scar-like overgrowths.

Some inhabitants of southern Africa, the Philippines and Central America, filed the teeth to points, or removed certain teeth as a beautifying operation; corrective dentistry of a distinctive kind.

In New Guinea the natives slashed themselves with scars which served as tribal markings of beauty and respect. And in New Zealand and other countries, especially Japan, the natives employed — and still do employ—the art of tattoo, a favorite form of personal adornment for centuries among some classes of seafaring Europeans, English and Americans, as well.

Excessively long fingernails handsomely guarded with jeweled shields, have been the proud possessions of generations of rich Chinese. And the tiny, crippled feet of the Chinese women of caste were a sign of both beauty and luxury, however, pathetic and hideously unnatural such an ideal of beauty may seem to us.

Let it be remembered that savage tribes of all countries, including our own America, have covered their faces with bright-hued paint, have worn jeweled trinkets and gay-colored feathers; and that, while these customs seem barbaric, remnants of their glory survive in the sophisticated fashions of our modern era.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Senator Robert B. Howell, of Nebraska, is the only Annapolis graduate in the upper house of congress.

It follows that he is a mighty influential member of the naval affairs committee. Meaning not the slightest disrespect to the other members, he knows more about navies than all of them put together.

However, far be it from the Nebraskan to say so.

On the contrary, it is possible to discuss sea power with him indefinitely without discovering that he ever trod a man-o-war's quarter deck as a professional—except that the extent of his practical information concerning fighting vessels soon became pretty noticeable.

Anyway, this corn belt lawmaker—from about as far inland as is practicable to get in the United States—is one of the best informed persons between Sandy Hook and the Farallones on all naval questions.

Naturally, he must have listened with keen interest to President Hoover's talk with Premier Ramsay MacDonald relative to an Anglo-American armament limitation agreement. True, he denies it—apparently thinks it might be interpreted as eavesdropping.

Nevertheless, I noticed that he seemed very familiar with every detail of the negotiations thus far.

---

Some senators freely express themselves as extremely fearful that Uncle Sam will be euchred as a final result of the naval game in progress between Washington and London.

The Nebraskan is not greatly worried.

"Old world diplomacy generally makes ours look foolish," he admitted, "but I hardly see how it can do so in the present instance.

"Our last naval bargain was struck at a time when it was necessary for us, if anyone, to make sacrifices. A bargain today would force Britain to cut down to our level, or leave us free to build up to hers—which certainly would not be reduction, but might be limitation."

---

Does it seem likely that Britain ever will scrap any of her still serviceable warships?—as America did.

"Perhaps not," answered the senator, "but maybe it would be worth our while to accept her promise not to replace a certain proportion of these vessels as they wear out—if she should make such an offer.

"To be sure, John Bull would thus continue to hold his lead over us for a few more years, but that probably would not greatly matter. It will be quite awhile before any of the 1914-1918 beligerents will sufficiently have recvered from the last war's stomachache to risk starting another one.

"Besides, we Americans are best disposed of all the nations to 'take a chance' for the sake of world peace."

---

Hints come from London of some plan to juggle tonnage reckonings so as to give actual naval superiority to Britain, while soothing American feelings by according to the United States a fictitious "paper" equality.

"I stand for parity," siad the senator, promptly, "—real parity; not on paper alone.

"That is, I stand for genuine, ton-for-ton Anglo-American parity as a permanent proposition — possibly without prejudice to an arrangement permitting to Britain a reasonable period of time to reduce to our proportions, instead of requiring her to reduce immediately, or necessitating a building program on our part to overtake her."

---

"But, senator," I suggested, "you have mentioned that our diplomacy is rather guileless. Is there no danger that an unequal standard of measurement might be 'put across' on it?"

"It surely would be revealed in the senate," returned the Nebraskan.

By Senator Howell?—for instance.

"There are senators, I am aware," he continued, "who take as their motto, 'Ours not to reason why, ours always to support the administration.' But not all of them—beyond a reasonable amount of team work. I do not believe a treaty with so unfair a clause in it could be ratified."

---

And then, with both sides disappointed, would not the situation be worse than ever?

"No; better, I think," said the Omaha legislator.

"A basis would have been furnished for negotiations involving less pure guess work. Diplomacy would have discovered, at least, what is could not accomplish, and could go ahead intelligently to evolve something sensible.

"Or, if not — well, the United States can stand present conditions as long as Great Britain can."

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Tic or Habit-Spasm

"Dear Doctor: My son, aged 20 years, has a twitching of the eyes and mouth. This seems to happen when he is quiet for any length of time. The mouth twitches to the side, and when this happens on the right side, the outer corner of the right eye also twitches, or when it happens on the left side, it follows the same course. Should a physician be consulted? MRS. C."

Yes, Mrs. C., the malady your son suffers from is known as tic, or habit-spasm. These habit-spasms may be started from shock where the movement is used as a defense. For instance, in our medical literature is the history of a pugilist who was terrified by the explosion of a bomb dropped from a Zeppelin. He evidently made the movement of the shoulder and arm as if avoiding a blow and he continued this jerky movement and facial grimace such as a pugilist might make during a fight, even after the cause had been removed.

This is a reflex, defensive or voluntary movement, which has assumed an imperative character. It may consist of a single movement, an isolated tic, or of a number of movements of different muscles occurring at the same time, or in rapid succession, or it may be in the form of a general tic. There may be a "grinning tic," a "sucking tic," a "snuffing tic," a "licking tic," a "biting tic," a "scratching tic," a "nodding tic," a "hair pulling tic," etc.

The ties usually develop around puberty, or after, and usually in persons of unstable nervous systems from some cause. Injury, mental strain intoxication (this doesn't necessarily mean alcoholism, but toxemia, or poison in the blood, from some reason), are the exciting factors.

Tic differs from St. Vitus dance, or chorea, in that the movements are always the same stereotyped movements and always involve the same group or groups of muscles, while those of St. Vitus dance are never performed twice in the same way and are apt to be generalized. (Chorea is believed to be one of the manifestations of acute rheumatism in children, with an acute infection as the cause, coupled with malnourishment and anemia.)

The Freudian school of psychoanalysts believe that the tic is the expression of some suppressed purpose and it is a defense compromise which gives relief to the patient. Psychoanalysis has cured some patients.

I suggest you have your son thoroughly checked up by a competent physician, Mrs. C. See that his hygienic habits are normal. Then, if your doctor thinks it necessary, visit a specialist in psychiatry.

Mrs. T.—You are at the age where you can expect the menopause. (Our new pamphlet on the Hygiene of Women was sent you.) You should be examined, for it is quite obvious you have an inflammation of the bladder. Until you can see your physician, omit meats, fish and eggs from your diet, taking more milk, nuts and cheese for your protein; and cut down your breads and cereals, taking potatoes instead, for the starches. Eat liberally of the fruits and vegetables, and drink very freely of water. This will make your urine less concentrated, and will make it alkaline or neutral, so it won't be so irritating. (Ask also for our pamphlet on the Kidney and Bladder Diseases.)

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

A wife and mother asks my advice on the following:

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a married lady and my husband and I and girl are having to be away from our home on account of his work. The daughter is ready for high school and she doesn't want to stay here and go to school, and the husband insists that we must stay with him. Now what advice can you give me on this? Should I go back home to send daughter to school or should I stay here with husband? I want to do what is best for all of us.

"B. E. H."

Stay with husband, by all means. He is the provider for the family and should have his home where his work is and all the comforts of family life. Daughter is selfish in wanting to go to school in the old home town, and it is right she should make the sacrifice for the good of the family. I know it is hard to start school in a new home and among strangers, but sooner or later she will have to face life's little hardships, and she should begin to do her part toward the greatest good for the greatest number.

This sort of thing is a lesson in socializing that young people badly need. As long as mothers insist on making life easy for young folks, so long are they going to try, at least, to escape the disagreeables of life. They must be made to feel a sense of responsibility, and the earlier the better. The lack of this mars many a life. The young person—or the older one—who always takes the easiest way, without thinking of the sacrifices it involves to others, is not only going to give many a heartache to those with whom she or he lives, but is preparing for many a heartache and failure for herself. As long as daughter is dependent on her father for funds for her education she should accommodate herself to his needs.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: What would you think of a girl of 15, noted for sense beyond her age, an whose word is given only after careful consideration, saying she loves a boy and then acting 'not so hot' on the grounds that she wants to go out with a lot of boys and have a good (?) time? Would you call it just reaching adolescence or the influence of a parent who's been filling her young head with ideas? What course would you advise for the boy who loves her very much? HOPING."

Why not accept her decision. Hoping, and then give her such a good time and keep her so busy that she has very little time for other boys?

I have argued this thing over with young men before now and never have been able to convince them that the girl was in the right. They always maintain that the girl does not love them if she won't go "steady." And they are just as surprised and hurt as possible when she takes the stand that she wants to play around a bit until she is older. Often they will rather lose her friendship than accept it under such conditions. A girl of 15 is not old enough to be engaged, and she has very little experience with life. She should, in my estimation, play around a bit until she is older and knows her own mind—as much as anyone ever does. She has, as you say, "sense beyond her age." It may be a parent's influence that has made her so decide, or her own good judgment.

WHAT SHALL I DO?: As long as you have dates with other boys you would have no more right to ask the boy friend if he kisses the girl he dates goodnight than he would to ask you if you allow that liberty when you go out with others. It's hardly fair to try to get him to stop smoking when you do it occasionally yourself, it it? Tell him you do, if you wish, or stop it. If both the boys give you birthday presents, thank them both prettily. Send both greeting cards for Christmas, or if you send gifts, make them little, inexpensive things. It's not necessary to send the boy friend a birthday present unless you particularly wish to. Send him a card or letter of greeting instead.

Peter's Adventures

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

MOLASSES FOR THE ENEMY

Peter waited, to be sure he was not mistaken, the Chirper really was foaming at the mouth, and acting strangely. And he was about to call for Mrs. Cricket when Mr. Cricket turned to him:

"Don't be alarmed," murmured he. "I am not ill, nor crazy! I am just making ready to protect myself. Did you hear that whirring?"

"Did I?" Peter repeated Chirper's question. "I should say so! It was loud enough! What was it? I was afraid it meant that danger threatened you, and I was just about ready to yell for Mrs. Cricket. For goodness sakes, will you please tell me what that stuff is which you are spitting out of your mouth? It looks like molasses. Is it?"

"I am sure I don't know what molasses is," said he. "What I am making is a juice that will make the birds keep away from me. That whirring we just heard was made by a bird. Listen! There it goes again. A bird is coming toward me. But he will not come too near. I will smear him with this if he tries to touch me, and he will decide to let me alone, take my word for it."

"I should think he had better!" exclaimed Peter. "It doesn't look very pretty, and it doesn't smell very good. Certainly I should hate to have you squirt any of it on me."

"Then all is exactly as it should be!" declared Chirper. "There what did I tell you? That bird, by hook or crook, must have discovered that I was all ready for him, and knowing when he was well off, he has flown away on other business. You can see for yourself, he has disappeared. But look, boy! Who comes there? If my eyes do not deceive me, some stranger over yonder is waving to attract our attention. I am quite positive I never saw the chap before. He must mean you. From this distance he looks like a Bee, but I do not know many Bees. See, he is beckoning again. If you know who he is you may know what he wants! I'm sure I don't!"

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED by Phil

Nick Altrock, baseball's greatest comedian today and one of the greatest pitchers in days gone by, knows how he would pitch to Babe Ruth were he in his pitching prime today.

"Walk him—and pick him off first base," was Nick's answer when that question was propounded to him.

And that is not applesauce or a wise crack either for Nick can refer you to the records to substantiate the statement. It is a matter of record that in one game in the Pacific Coast League Altrock purposely passed seven batters and then picked all seven off the initial sack.

This feat occurred during the comedian's minor league pitching days when his arm began to fail him and he relied mainly on the old bean to get him by.

A recurrence of this incident came in the world series of 1906 after Nick had helped pitch the White Sox "hitless wonders" to the American League championship. Altrock asked and received the assignment to start the opening series game against Mordicai Brown, ace twirler on the staff of the Cubs. Each pitcher allowed four hits but Nick won that contest 2 to 1.

Recalling this particular game, Nick said that he got in four tough spots but "I walked four sluggers, then picked all of them off first base."

Baseball men concede that Nick possessed the most deceptive motion for a peg to first base, thus accounting for the fact so many runners were caught napping by his snap throws. It did not come under the classification of a balk either.

The most alert runners were invariably caught off guard by Nick, who just seemed to stand close to the slab as if getting signals from the catcher. All of a sudden that left arm would flip the ball to the first baseman.

Edward Jacobs, near Xenia, husky football star at Muskingum College, who held down a regular guard position last year, may be revamped into a tackle this season because Head Coach "Bill" Lange expects to have difficulty in filling a tackle post vacated by Fox.

Varsity grid practice opens at Muskingum September 16 will thirty-five candidates expected to report and Jacobs has been getting himself into condition for the long grind by practicing with Xenia Central High football candidates in the afternoons.

REGISTER VICTORY OVER POST OFFICE IN DECIDING GAME

Ninth Inning Rally Falls Short Of Knotting Count.

The Hooven and Allison Co. softball team clinched the championship of the American League by defeating the Post Office nine, 10 to 9 Wednesday night at Cox Field.

The game was a protest contest which had been ordered re-played by the Softball Commission.

The H. and A. victory was achieved in easier fashion that the one-run margin would indicate. Leading from start to finish, the winners had an advantage of 10 to 5 when the last half of the ninth inning rolled around.

The contest should have been called at the end of the eighth round but it was agreed to play out the full nine innings and the mailmen, aided by darkness which made it difficult to see the ball, scored four runs in the last half of the ninth as a result of four errors and a single, the rally failing one run short of evening the score.

Altogether the postal nine made only five hits, as compared with fourteen obtained by the H. and A.

A bit of concentrated hitting gave the H. and A. six runs in the fifth inning and a substantial margin to work on.

Williams pitched for the winners while Downey was on the mound for the losers. Both hurlers, particularly Williams, were accorded loose support in the field.

D. Kersey, H. and A. third baseman, rapped out a quartet of hits, including a brace of triples and a pair of singles. Downey with a single and double, led his team at bat.

The championship of the National League will be at stake when the Harness Cigars and the Downtown Country Club meet in a post-season game Thursday night promptly at 6 o'clock. Score:

VARSITY ATHLETES START WORK SOON

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 12.—Three varsity squads will be mobilized within another month at Ohio State University in preparation of the fall campaign.

Public attention probably will be centered on football but the cross country and soccer squads will be busy, too.

After a slow start last season, the Buckeyes were second in the Big Ten conference hill and dale championships. Coach F. R. Castleman hopes to have another good team in the field this year.

Soccer is expected to take on new life here with the appointment of Harry F. Castle, an Englishman, as coach. Castle is an experienced player and coach.

The 1929 campaign will be the third for soccer at Ohio State since its revival here in 1927. In that year the Buckeyes won the unofficial conference title.

MORE THAN 500 ATTEND ANNUAL FISH AND GAME GROUP OUTING

Between 500 and 600 sportsmen and their families and friends from all parts of Greene and adjoining counties attended the fourteenth annual all-day picnic and outing of the Greene County Fish and Game Protective Association, held Wednesday at the D. H. Keiter Sugar Grove.

Prizes aggregating nearly $400 were awarded by the organization in the various events that constituted the day's athletic program. Marking a departure from other years, the prize list was for the most part financed by the organization itself. Heretofore the association had solicited all prizes from local merchants.

Chief Game Warden Thompson, head of the state division of fish and game, also attended the picnic, arriving late in the afternoon.

Crack marksmen from Cincinnati, Columbus, Dayton, Springfield and other nearby cities as well as local sportsmen participated in the rifle shooting competition.

Lunch was served on the grounds at noon.

Nineteen events comprised the day's program, which opened with coon races in the morning. Other events included trap shooting contests, three running deer shooting contests, four rifle shoots for men and one for women, two pistol shoots with clay birds and paper targets, a revolver shoot, bait casting for distance and for accuracy, horse shoe pitching contests for men and women, and women's guessing and rollingpin contests.

The committee which had charge of the outing was composed of Ed. S. Foust, John Bocklet, Harry Spahr, Clyde Kussmaul, Archie Peterson, W. B. McCallister, Harry Seifert, Samuel Bone and Ohmer Tate.

PAUL BOXWELL L EADS BATTERS IN NATIONAL LOOP AVERAGES

Paul Boxwell, slugger par-excellence of the Harness Cigars, topped the National League batters with a mark of .472 when the season's hitting averages of all the players were compiled.

Twenty-eight players in this league had a season's batting mark above the .300 figure but only three regulars were able to wind up in the .400 class.

Langs had eight players, Harness and the Downtown Country Club seven regulars and Central High School six players batting .300 or better.

CAMP SMITH, Peekskill, N.Y. Aug. 17th.—I have shared the soldier's cigarette in pretty nearly every corner of the world, and I know how set in his ways an army man can get when it comes to knowing what smoke he likes. So frankly the idea that a two year old cigarette—even if it did have the name OLD GOLD—could win this test over three old time brands seemed unbelievable.

But the thing worked out. At Camp Smith, where I witnessed the test, OLD GOLD put the bee on 506 Yanks of the Old Seventh New York regiment.

The Old Seventh went OLD GOLD with 195 bull's-eyes as against 144 for the next brand, with the two other old timers rating scores of 81 and 86.

What's more, this concealed name test is as square as a regimental parade ground.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

Nick Altrock, baseball's greatest comedian today and one of the greatest pitchers in days gone by, knows how he would pitch to Babe Ruth were he in his pitching prime today.

"Walk him—and pick him off first base," was Nick's answer when that question was propounded to him.

And that is not applesauce or a wise crack either for Nick can refer you to the records to substantiate the statement. It is a matter of record that in one game in the Pacific Coast League Altrock purposely passed seven batters and then picked all seven off the initial sack.

This feat occurred during the comedian's minor league pitching days when his arm began to fail him and he relied mainly on the old bean to get him by.

A recurrence of this incident came in the world series of 1906 after Nick had helped pitch the White Sox "hitless wonders" to the American League championship. Altrock asked and received the assignment to start the opening series game against Mordicai Brown, ace twirler on the staff of the Cubs. Each pitcher allowed four hits but Nick won that contest 2 to 1.

Recalling this particular game, Nick said that he got in four tough spots but "I walked four sluggers, then picked all of them off first base."

Baseball men concede that Nick possessed the most deceptive motion for a peg to first base, thus accounting for the fact so many runners were caught napping by his snap throws. It did not come under the classification or a balk either.

The most alert runners were invariably caught off guard by Nick, who just seemed to stand close to the slab as if getting signals from the catcher. All of a sudden that left arm would flip the ball to the first baseman.

Edward Jacobs, near Xenia, husky football star at Muskingum College, who held down a regular guard position last year, may be revamped into a tackle this season because Head Coach "Bill" Lange expects to have difficulty in filling a tackle post vacated by Fox.

Varsity grid practice opens at Muskingum September 16 will thirty-five candidates expected to report and Jacobs has been getting himself into condition for the long grind by practicing with Xenia Central High football candidates in the afternoons.

REGISTER VICTORY OVER POST OFFICE IN DECIDING GAME

Ninth Inning Rally Falls Short Of Knotting Count.

The Hooven and Allison Co. softball team clinched the championship of the American League by defeating the Post Office nine, 10 to 9 Wednesday night at Cox Field.

The game was a protest contest which had been ordered re-played by the Softball Commission.

The H. and A. victory was achieved in easier fashion that the one-run margin would indicate. Leading from start to finish, the winners had an advantage of 10 to 5 when the last half of the ninth inning rolled around.

The contest should have been called at the end of the eighth round but it was agreed to play out the full nine innings and the mailmen, aided by darkness which made it difficult to see the ball, scored four runs in the last half of the ninth as a result of four errors and a single, the rally failing one run short of evening the score.

Altogether the postal nine made only five hits, as compared with fourteen obtained by the H. and A.

A bit of concentrated hitting gave the H. and A. six runs in the fifth inning and a substantial margin to work on.

Williams pitched for the winners while Downey was on the mound for the losers. Both hurlers, particularly Williams, were accorded loose support in the field.

D. Kersey, H. and A. third baseman, rapped out a quartet of hits, including a brace of triples and a pair of singles. Downey with a single and double, led his team at bat.

The championship of the National League will be at stake when the Harness Cigars and the Downtown Country Club meet in a post-season game Thursday night promptly at 6 o'clock. Score:

VARSITY ATHLETES START WORK SOON

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 12.—Three varsity squads will be mobilized within another month at Ohio State University in preparation of the fall campaign.

Public attention probably will be centered on football but the cross country and soccer squads will be busy, too.

After a slow start last season, the Buckeyes were second in the Big Ten conference hill and dale championships. Coach F. R. Castleman hopes to have another good team in the field this year.

Soccer is expected to take on new life here with the appointment of Harry F. Castle, an Englishman, as coach. Castle is an experienced player and coach.

The 1929 campaign will be the third for soccer at Ohio State since its revival here in 1927. In that year the Buckeyes won the unofficial conference title.

MORE THAN 500 ATTEND ANNUAL FISH AND GAME GROUP OUTING

Between 500 and 600 sportsmen and their families and friends from all parts of Greene and adjoining counties attended the fourteenth annual all-day picnic and outing of the Greene County Fish and Game Protective Association, held Wednesday at the D. H. Keiter Sugar Grove.

Prizes aggregating nearly $400 were awarded by the organization in the various events that constituted the day's athletic program. Marking a departure from other years, the prize list was for the most part financed by the organization itself. Heretofore the association had solicited all prizes from local merchants.

Chief Game Warden Thompson, head of the state division of fish and game, also attended the picnic, arriving late in the afternoon.

Crack marksmen from Cincinnati, Columbus, Dayton, Springfield and other nearby cities as well as local sportsmen participated in the rifle shooting competition.

Lunch was served on the grounds at noon.

Nineteen events comprised the day's program, which opened with coon races in the morning. Other events included trap shooting contests, three running deer shooting contests, four rifle shoots for men and one for women, two pistol shoots with clay birds and paper targets, a revolver shoot, bait casting for distance and for accuracy, horse shoe pitching contests for men and women, and women's guessing and rollingpin contests.

The committee which had charge of the outing was composed of Ed. S. Foust, John Bocklet, Harry Spahr, Clyde Kussmaul, Archie Peterson, W. B. McCallister, Harry Seifert, Samuel Bone and Ohmer Tate.

Twenty-eight players in this league had a season's batting mark above the .300 figure but only three regulars were able to wind up in the .400 class.

O. B. Bogart has been appointed faculty manager of athletics at Xenia Central High School for the 1929-30 school year, succeeding Eugene G. Whitworth, who resigned from the school faculty to accept a teaching position at Kiser High School, Dayton.

The new faculty manager attended Ohio Northern University, two years, graduated from Bliss Business College at Columbus, taught at Montpelier High School before coming to Xenia and while at Montpelier coached the junior high basketball team.

Announcement is also made that Central High athletics will be handled through the commercial department this year.

Season tickets for the Buccaneer home football games this fall will probably be issued early next week, possibly on Tuesday. Student tickets will be sold for $1.25 and adult tickets will be available for $2.

CAMP SMITH, Peekskill, N.Y. Aug. 17th.—I have shared the soldier's cigarette in pretty nearly every corner of the world, and I know how set in his ways an army man can get when it comes to knowing what smoke he likes. So frankly the idea that a two year old cigarette—even if it did have the name OLD GOLD—could win this test over three old time brands seemed unbelievable.

But the thing worked out. At Camp Smith, where I witnessed the test, OLD GOLD put the bee on 506 Yanks of the Old Seventh New York regiment.

The Old Seventh went OLD GOLD with 195 bull's-eyes as against 144 for the next brand, with the two other old timers rating scores of 81 and 86.

What's more, this concealed name test is as square as a regimental parade ground.

FORMER XENIAN IS VICTIM OF ATTACK AT KANSAS CITY

Timothy Berry, 50, Kansas City, Mo., former Xenian, is in General Hospital, Kansas City, believed to be recovering from injuries sustained when he was assaulted by thugs in a daring daylight attack on a Kansas City street last Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Berry was taken to the hospital with a fractured skull, and did not regain consciousness until late Monday evening. Police are investigating circumstances of the attack and friends have advanced the opinion that the assault may have been made in retaliation for testimony given by Mr. Berry at a trial in which a former employe sought to obtain compensation for an injury.

The former Xenian is spinning room foreman for the branch factory of The Hooven and Allison Co., at Kansas City. His testimony is believed to have prevented the former employe from obtaining compensation unjustly, and he is said to have received threats as a result of the testimony he submitted.

The fact that his watch and money he carried were not disturbed, eliminated a robbery theory. The assault occurred about 1 o'clock in the afternoon Saturday, a short distance from Mr. Berry's rooming house. J. F. Orr, secretary of The Hooven and Allison Co., in charge of the Kansas City mill and Elwood Swan, superintendent, both former Xenians, notified relatives here and in Dayton and are spurring police investigation of the attack.

DYER WILL SPEAK AT TAX MEETING

W. B. Bryson, Clifton Pike, who is in Columbus attending a meeting of the All-Ohio Tax League and a directors meeting of the Ohio State Farm Bureau, announces that a district meeting of members of the Nineteenth District will be held at Washington C. H., Friday, September 13. The district is composed of four counties, Greene, Montgomery, Clinton and Fayette..

C. A. Dyer, legislative agent of the Ohio State Farm Bureau and Ohio State Grange, will speak at the meeting, discussing the proposed tax limit amendment.

WOMAN INJURED

Mrs. T. C. Lord, wife of Prof. Lord, of the engineering department of Antioch College, is under the care of a physician at her home in Yellow Springs, recovering from minor cuts and bruises sustained Tuesday night when her automobile was forced from the Springfield Pike, near the village. Her two-year-old son, who was in the car with her, escaped injury.

GIVEN HEAVY FINE ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Found guilty of a charge of possessing liquor-making apparatus, Aniel Bent, colored, 44 Taylor St., was fined $1,000 and costs by Mayor Karl R. Babb Thursday morning.

Bent had previously been fined $100 and costs by Mayor Babb September 3 upon his guilty plea to a charge of possessing liquor.

He was arrested two weeks ago on the suspicion of connection with bootlegging activities with discovery of a seventy-five gallon capacity still, several barrels of mash and some liquor by police who raided his home.

Bent disclaimed ownership of the still, asserting it was placed in his house by some other person for the purpose of manufacturing liquor. Efforts of both Bent and police to find the alleged real owner were unavailing.

COMMISSION SEES HISTORICAL SITES

Members of the Ohio Revolutionary War Memorial Commission spent a short time early Wednesday afternoon in Greene County, during which they were conducted to Old Town, north of Xenia, where Old Chillicothe, principal town of the Shawnee Indians, was located and which spot would be marked by the commission as a reminder of the Revolutionary War days in Ohio.

After the stop at Old Town, the commission went to Springfield, where it viewed the George Rogers Clark memorial, which it is proposed to incorporate in a state park. The site of the Clark memorial, which would also be marked by the trails commission, is five miles west of Springfield.

Prof. H. C. Aultman, as vice-president of the Greene County Historical Society, headed the local delegation which formed a reception committee for the commission and escorted its members on their inspection trip.

The commission expected to visit places of historic interest in Urbana, Bellefontaine and West Liberty Thursday.

BIRDS RETURN TO AIR

Canaries Trained To Accompany Radio Trio, Broadcasting Daily

CHRISTINE PHILLIPSON — OLGA SERLISS — GENIEVE LEWIS

(Editor's Note: This is another of a series of sketches of the most prominent radio artists of the day. Others follow.)

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY
Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—If you don't care much for fairy tales, better tune in on the sports page or the movie reviews. This is going to sound like one.

Almost three years ago Elizabeth Freeman lived in Washington with her two lovely little canaries, Blue Boy and Big Boy. Every morning bright and early—at 7:45 to be exact—she tuned in on "The Parnassus Trio," from New York, to listen to the three charming young ladies that make up the ensemble.

One morning Miss Freeman realized suddenly that the birds were chirping right along with the trio and—more astounding still—they were actually almost on pitch with the melody. For her own amusement Miss Freeman began to train Big Boy and Blue Boy. Soon they would sing or stop singing at a signal, and in a little while had a regular repertoire of numbers that they could do right along with the radio.

Pass Audition Test

Miss Freeman came to New York and happened to mention what fun she was having with the two birdies to a man interested in a broadcasting studio. He urged her to bring them to New York for an AUDITION! Big Boy and Blue Boy were put through the same kind of formal audition that anyone who broadcasts would be. And they passed with feathers flying.

Now for more than a year the two remarkable little birds have traveled the subway every morning to be in the studio at 7:45 to earn their board and keep. It is very early for even a birdie to be up in this man's town. And, oh so hard on the three poor little woiking goils that accompany the canary duo.

Incidentally, one gets so much interested in the fact that two birds can sing dozens of songs in such a professional manner that one almost forgets to tell about the three lovely little ladies that make up the Parnassus Trio. Olga Serlis, brilliant and beautiful youngster, heads the group at the piano, and arranges all the programs. She is from Chicago. Christine Phillipson, violinist, blonde and striking, is from Atlanta. The regular third member of the trio is Ana Drittell, from Russia, who is now in Europe. Genieve Lewis, cellist, has taken her place for the summer.

These young musicians have been on the air every morning for two years without missing a day—except Sunday. Five years ago they all came together—the girl from Chicago, the girl from Atlanta, and the girl from Russia—and have been musical pals ever since.

Volumes of Fan Mail

Do people listen in at 7:45 in the morning? How is this for proof? They get more fan mail than any other group in the largest broadcasting institution in the world.

Never believe again that a little whistle manipulated by a sleep-eyed manipulator is chirping with the Parnassus trio the next time you hear them.

But imagine Big Boy and Blue Boy, sassy and primping in their cages. They are covered on three sides so that nothing will detract their august attentions while they sing for their breakfast.

The World And All

BY CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

IN OLD LONDON

My friend, Abrams, a barrister, takes me to lunch at Gray's inn. Gray's is one of the four inns of court, and every barrister must belong to one of the four inns. Besides Gray's there are Lincoln's Inn and Inner Temple and Middle Temple. Each inn has a chapel, except that the Middle and Inner Temples share the use of the temple, ancient chapel of the Knights Templars.

At Gray's Inn we sit at a long table on fixed benches without backs, and eat a hearty English lunch, along with many barristers. There are two young women who are barristers of Gray's inn, eating at a table opposite us. Only since the war have women been called to the bar in England.

This is a very ancient room, and it remains today almost exactly as it was when William Shakespeare, an ambitious young member of Gray's inn, produced here for the first time his plays, "Merchant of Venice" and "Midsummer's Night's Dream." I don't know why he produced them here rather than in a theater the first time, but I suppose it was because he could have this hall rent free for an evening or two, while his personal friends of the inn would thus have a chance to criticise his plays.

Queen Elizabeth used to come here and dance on this very oak floor with Sir Walter Raleigh and some of the other gay blades of that day. What statecraft must have been cooked up in this somber old hall in those times!

After lunch we visit around among the other inns of court, and spend some time in the ancient temple itself. Here on the floor lie the placid bronze figures of the Crusaders who are buried beneath. There are inscriptions telling who these Templars were, and how they fell at Acre or Jerusalem or elsewhere, fighting for the return of the Holy Sepulchre to Christian possession. What romantic days!

Outside the temple, in a shady, mossy corner, we come suddenly upon a simple stone marking a rather lonely grave. The inscription: "Here Lies Oliver Goldsmith."

Just give me a little time. One doesn't come upon the grave of Oliver Goldsmith all of a sudden, and immediately saunter off, looking for more sights.

You've read of Lincoln's Inn Fields. We find it. It is simply a good sized enclosure, back of Lincoln inn, wheer the barristers of that society may play lawn tennis and bowl on the green. Each of the inns of court has such an enclosure, with ancient trees and well kept grass. Why each such lawn should be called "Fields" is beyond me. But perhaps there used to be fields here. Only a little while ago I came upon an old church called St. Martin's In the Fields. The only fields are many miles away, and St. Martin's is surrounded by busy streets and business buildings.

The law courts, ranging all along one of the streets in the vicinity of the inns of court, make up one of the most imposing piles of architecture in London.

THIS

"I am so happy"

..that the last pimple is gone"

EVERY evening thousands enjoy themselves at dinner-parties, dances, theatres, games, clubs. Many thousands more are denied the joy of such merriment and happiness.

Maybe this denial is due to a skin trouble. First impressions cannot be good without a clear skin—first impressions are quickly made and are not soon forgotten. Old friends may excuse pimples and secretly sympathize, but new acquaintances may not be so charitable. Skin blemishes are not inviting. Neither can they be covered up. They embarrass. Hold people back. Steal away joy and happiness.

A lovely—clear skin—is within the reach of all. To those who have lost it, hope is offered. You, too, may have a beautiful skin, rose-petal in texture, pretty as a picture and without a single pimple.

Many thousands have regained their strength and charm by taking S.S.S. It is Nature's own blood tonic for raising the body's power of resistance to disease, improving the appetite, building firm flesh, and clearing the skin.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

Take S.S.S. at meal-time. You will be delighted with its blood building and tonic effect.

All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

The way to the skin is through the blood. Strong, healthy blood nourishes the body and fights against infection and disease.

PRESIDENT EIGHT

sets New Stock Car Record in 1929 Pikes Peak Climb!

—Adds famous Penrose Trophy to 11 world and 23 international records

A strictly stock and fully equipped Studebaker President Eight, driven by Glen Shultz, set the fastest stock car time in history to win the Annual Penrose Trophy Race to the summit of Pikes Peak, 14,109 feet above sea level!

Already holding, undisputed, more official stock car records for speed and endurance than all other makes of American cars combined, Studebaker triumphs again.

American Automobile Association officials followed the same procedure in selecting the winning stock model President Eight as they did previously with the strictly stock President Eight which traveled 30,000 miles in 26,326 consecutive minutes. Picked at random from the Studebaker factory, The President was checked and certified as strictly stock before the race, and again after the run.*

The President Eight's record conquest of Pikes Peak is further proof of eight-cylinder performance supremacy—just as eight-cylinder popularity has been proved by Studebaker's world leadership in the sale of eights! Why wait a year to own an eight when you can own the car of tomorrow today!

You can buy a duplicate of the Pikes Peak President from any Studebaker dealer. See it—drive it—own a Studebaker champion eight at a new, low One-Profit price! And remember your car will be worth more a year from now—if it is an eight!

*High compression head (6½ to 1) and mountain gear ratio (4.08 to 1) were used—either of which is optional and available to any Studebaker purchaser anywhere.

PRICES AT THE FACTORY

Studebaker's winning President Eight covered the 12 miles and 2200 feet to the summit of Pikes Peak—9150 feet to 14,109 feet above sea level—in the record stock car time of 21 minutes, 43.4 seconds. Average speed over this tortuous, twisting roadway was 34.3 miles per hour. 154 breath-taking curves make this course a supreme test of motor car balance and handling ease. That running conditions were not so advantageous this year was emphasized by the running time in the non-stock event, which was approximately 41 seconds slower than last year. Yet the President's time was the fastest ever made by any stock car over this course!

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—If you don't care much for fairy tales, better tune in on the sports page or the movie reviews. This is going to sound like one.

Almost three years ago Elizabeth Freeman lived in Washington with her two lovely little canaries, Blue Boy and Big Boy. Every morning bright and early—at 7:45 to be exact—she tuned in on "The Parnassus Trio," from New York, to listen to the three charming young ladies that make up the ensemble.

One morning Miss Freeman realized suddenly that the birds were chirping right along with the trio and—more astounding still— they were actually almost on pitch with the melody. For her own amusement Miss Freeman began to train Big Boy and Blue Boy. Soon they would sing or stop singing at a signal, and in a little while had a regular repertoire of numbers that they could do right along with the radio.

Pass Audition Test

Miss Freeman came to New York and happened to mention what fun she was having with the two birdies to a man interested in a broadcasting studio. He urged her to bring them to New York for an AUDITION! Big Boy and Blue Boy were put through the same kind of formal audition that anyone who broadcasts would be. And they passed with feathers flying.

Now for more than a year the two remarkable little birds have traveled the subway every morning to be in the studio at 7:45 to earn their board and keep. It is very early for even a birdie to be up in this man's town. And, oh so hard on the three poor little woiking goils that accompany the canary duo.

Incidentally, one gets so much interested in the fact that two birds can sing dozens of songs in such a professional manner that one almost forgets to tell about the three lovely little ladies that make up the Parnassus Trio. Olga Serlis, brilliant and beautiful youngster, heads the group at the piano, and arranges all the programs. She is from Chicago. Christine Phillipson, violinist, blonde and striking, is from Atlanta. The regular third member of the trio is Ana Drittell, from Russia, who is now in Europe. Genieve Lewis, cellist, has taken her place for the summer.

These young musicians have been on the air every morning for two years without missing a day—except Sunday. Five years ago they all came together—the girl from Chicago, the girl from Atlanta, and the girl from Russia—and have been musical pals ever since.

Volumes of Fan Mail

Do people listen in at 7:45 in the morning? How is this for proof? They get more fan mail than any other group in the largest broadcasting institution in the world.

Never believe again that a little whistle manipulated by a sleepy-eyed manipulator is chirping with the Parnassus trio the next time you hear them.

But imagine Big Boy and Blue Boy, sassy and primping in their cages. They are covered on three sides so that nothing will detract their august attentions while they sing for their breakfast.

The World And All

BY CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

IN OLD LONDON

My friend, Abrams, a barrister, takes me to lunch at Gray's inn. Gray's is one of the four inns of court, and every barrister must belong to one of the four inns. Besides Gray's there are Lincoln's Inn and Inner Temple and Middle Temple. Each inn has a chapel, except that the Middle and Inner Temples share the use of the temple, ancient chapel of the Knights Templars.

At Gray's Inn we sit at a long table on fixed benches without backs, and eat a hearty English lunch, along with many barristers. There are two young women who are barristers of Gray's inn, eating at a table opposite us. Only since the war have women been called to the bar in England.

This is a very ancient room, and it remains today almost exactly as it was when William Shakespeare, an ambitious young member of Gray's inn, produced here for the first time his plays, "Merchant of Venice" and "Midsummer's Night's Dream." I don't know why he produced them here rather than in a theater the first time, but I suppose it was because he could have this hall rent free for an evening or two, while his personal friends of the inn would thus have a chance to criticise his plays.

Queen Elizabeth used to come here and dance on this very oak floor with Sir Walter Raleigh and some of the other gay blades of that day. What statecraft must have been cooked up in this somber old hall in those times!

After lunch we visit around among the other inns of court, and spend some time in the ancient temple itself. Here on the floor lie the placid bronze figures of the Crusaders who are buried beneath. There are inscriptions telling who these Templars were, and how they fell at Acre or Jerusalem or elsewhere, fighting for the return of the Holy Sepulchre to Christian possession. What romantic days!

Outside the temple, in a shady, mossy corner, we come suddenly upon a simple stone marking a rather lonely grave. The inscription: "Here Lies Oliver Goldsmith."

Just give me a little time. One doesn't come upon the grave of Oliver Goldsmith all of a sudden, and immediately saunter off, looking for more sights.

You've read of Lincoln's Inn Fields. We find it. It is simply a good sized enclosure, back of Lincoln inn, wheer the barristers of that society may play lawn tennis and bowl on the green. Each of the inns of court has such an enclosure, with ancient trees and well kept grass. Why each such lawn should be called "Fields" is beyond me. But perhaps there used to be fields here. Only a little while ago I came upon an old church called St. Martin's In the Fields. The only fields are many miles away, and St. Martin's is surrounded by busy streets and business buildings.

The law courts, ranging all along one of the streets in the vicinity of the inns of court, make up one of the most imposing piles of architecture in London.

"I am so happy"
—that the last pimple is gone"

You may be happy, too! The way to the skin is through the blood. Strong, healthy blood nourishes the body and fights against infection and disease.

EVERY evening thousands enjoy themselves at dinner-parties, dances, theatres, games, clubs. Many thousands more are denied the joy of such merriment and happiness.

Maybe this denial is due to a skin trouble. First impressions cannot be good without a clear skin—first impressions are quickly made and are not soon forgotten. Old friends may excuse pimples and secretly sympathize, but new acquaintances may not be so charitable. Skin blemishes are not inviting. Neither can they be covered up. They embarrass. Hold people back. Steal away joy and happiness.

A lovely—clear skin—is within the reach of all. To those who have lost it, hope is offered. You, too, may have a beautiful skin, rose-petal in texture, pretty as a picture and without a single pimple.

Many thousands have regained their strength and charm by taking S.S.S. It is Nature's own blood tonic for raising the body's power of resistance to disease, improving the appetite, building firm flesh, and clearing the skin.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

Take S.S.S. at meal-time. You will be delighted with its blood building and tonic effect.

All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

Studebaker
PRESIDENT EIGHT
sets New Stock Car Record in 1929 Pikes Peak Climb!

—Adds famous Penrose Trophy to 11 world and 23 international records

A strictly stock and fully equipped Studebaker President Eight, driven by Glen Shultz, set the fastest stock car time in history to win the Annual Penrose Trophy Race to the summit of Pikes Peak, 14,109 feet above sea level!

Already holding, undisputed, more official stock car records for speed and endurance than all other makes of American cars combined, Studebaker triumphs again.

American Automobile Association officials followed the same procedure in selecting the winning stock model President Eight as they did previously with the strictly stock President Eight which traveled 30,000 miles in 26,326 consecutive minutes. Picked at random from the Studebaker factory, The President was checked and certified as strictly stock before the race, and again after the run.*

The President Eight's record conquest of Pikes Peak is further proof of eight-cylinder performance supremacy—just as eight-cylinder popularity has been proved by Studebaker's world leadership in the sale of eights! Why wait a year to own an eight when you can own the car of tomorrow today!

You can buy a duplicate of the Pikes Peak President from any Studebaker dealer. See it—drive it—own a Studebaker champion eight at a new, low One-Profit price! And remember your car will be worth more a year from now—if it is an eight!

*High compression head (6½ to 1) and mountain gear ratio (4.08 to 1) were used—either of which is optional and available to any Studebaker purchaser anywhere.

PRICES AT THE FACTORY

Studebaker's winning President Eight covered the 12 miles and 2200 feet to the summit of Pikes Peak—9150 feet to 14,109 feet above sea level—in the record stock car time of 21 minutes, 43.4 seconds. Average speed over this tortuous, twisting roadway was 34.3 miles per hour. 154 breath-taking curves make this course a supreme test of motor car balance and handling ease. That running conditions were not so advantageous this year was emphasized by the running time in the non-stock event, which was approximately 41 seconds slower than last year. Yet the President's time was the fastest ever made by any stock car over this course!

BURRO GIVES FIGHT TO PREVENT ARREST

CLEVELAND, Sept. 12.—It required the combined efforts of the police department, a reformed "mule skinner" and the Animal Protective League to capture a balky prisoner here.

"Jack," a small burro with all the traditional characteristics of his tribe—obstinancy and downright viciousness—wandered away from his home feed-box in the wee morning hours. Hunger and loneliness caused Jack to go on the air over station BRAY for several hours, much to the annoyance of would-be sleepers in the neighborhood.

The driver of a bakery wagon chanced by, found Jack and tied him to a fire hydrant. Incensed at this treatment, Jack's braying increased in discord and volume and his hind legs lashed invisible enemies.

Residents called Sergt. John Gallagher, who assigned Patrolman Louis Baran and Sergt. Frank Murphy to the task of silencing Jack.

For two hours the burro tried desperately to drop-kick the heads of Baran and Murphy over the telephone wires. They despaired and telephoned for help. Gallagher, thereup, sent Elmer Eucker, custodian of the station and former "mule skinner."

Eucker sidled up to Jack and whispered softly in his ear. The braying ceased and Jack became docile and obliging.

Behind the auto of Charles Ferry and Harry Leffingwell of the Animal Protective League Jack meekly trotted to the league's stables.

FOUR NOW CONFINED FOR CHICKEN THEFT CASE; MORE SOUGHT

Charged with receiving stolen property, Oliver Warwick, colored, Columbus Pike, pleaded not guilty when arraigned Thursday morning before R. O. Copsey, Xenia Twp. justice of the peace. He appealed to Common Pleas Court to fix his bond and it was finally determined at $2,000.

Warwick was charged in an affidavit with receiving eighty-three chickens valued at $80, identified by Sheriff Ohmer Tate as having been stolen Tuesday night from Maywood Turner, who lives on the Wilberforce Pike, one-half mile south of Clifton.

Three other colored men, arrested by county authorities on the suspicion they are implicated in the case, are being held in the County Jail, pending a further investigation. They are: Alva and Noble Nooks, brothers, and Walter Mason.

Alva Nooks, through his attorney, F. H. Dean, made application in Probate Court for a writ of habeas corpus in an effort to obtain his release from custody on the ground authorities cannot legally hold him in jail without a charge being placed against him, but the case was continued by Judge S. C. Wright until Friday morning.

The chickens were confiscated by county authorities as they were allegedly being delivered to Warwick's home at 2 a. m. Wednesday. Ownership was traced later the same day through a red band on the leg of one rooster.

Turner reported to Sheriff Tate that thieves had invaded the chicken house on his farm Tuesday night, stealing eighty-three young springers all of the Barred Rock variety. Entrance was gained through a door which was unlocked.

Warwick was not at home when officers appeared but was arrested a short time later on Lexington Ave.

XENIA STORE NAMED AVIO-PORT FOR NEW ORGANIZATION HERE

The Criterion, S. Detroit St., clothing store, has been appointed official Avio-port for Xenia and Greene County by Avio of America, a national organization interested in aeronautics.

The object of the organization is to bring the youngsters of America into contact with the airplane industry, through the medium of model planes. Any boy between the ages of eight and eighteen in good standing in school, is eligible to join the organization at the Criterion Avio-port.

The member is supplied with books on aviation subjects and parts for the construction of model planes. There are two classes of these planes—duration and distance models and those modeled after such famous men—carrying planes as the Spirit of St. Louis, Columbia, Bremen and others.

The Criterion will assist the youngsters in furthering their interest in aviation and will conduct model plane contests for the members. The organization is nation-wide, Avio-ports being established in cities all over the country. The planes constructed take off and fly like real airplanes and are built on sound principles of aviation. Formation of the club began at the Xenia store Thursday.

Lady Was Surprised At Speed And Thoroughness With Which New Medicine Worked.

"I was miserable, then this new Konjola relieved me", said Mrs. Margaret Alger, 1080 East Seventeenth Ave., Columbus, Ohio. "I was a victim of a complication of ailments. Intense suffering followed every meal. I was subject to belching spells, and there was a bad taste in my mouth. Gas bloating allowed me no peace. I was constipated and was always taking strong laxatives. I was nervous and disgusted.

MRS. MARGARET ALGER

"I surely am glad that I gave Konjola a trial. Right from the start I noticed improvement, and in a remarkable short time my stomach was back to its normal, healthy condition. None of the distress that used to come after eating bothers me in the least any more. My bowels are regular. My nerves are in a fine condition. I feel like a new person."

T. E. La wrence

LONDON, England, Sept. 5.—Where is Lawrence of Arabia?

T. E. Lawrence, British envoy extraordinary and best friend of the Arabs, has disappeared from his usual haunts and secrecy shrouds his whereabouts.

Belief held here is that Lawrence has been sent on a secret mission to Palestine to pacify insurgent Arab tribesmen, many of whom will listen to no other European.

Lawrence is an amazing man, his career reading like that of the heroes of the late H. Rider Haggard and other novelists who have written of strange adventures in far corners of the globe.

He is known as Lawrence of Arabia, Col. T. E. Lawrence and Aircraftsman Shaw, adventurer, scholar, explorer, military agent, author, soldier, friend of kings and counseller to the lords of the great Arabian deserts. A private in the air force, he resigned a colonelcy in order to obtain the humbler post. He presents a fine figure in a London drawing room and is a power in the tented cities of Jebel Shammar and the Roba El Khali, which is known to infidel Europeans as the Great Sandy desert.

If there is any Christian who can pacify the turbulent tribes of Arabia without resorting to force it is Thomas Edward Lawrence, who began his desert career as a humble member from All Souls' college, Oxford, of a British museum expedition in 1910 and now, two decades later, is known as the "Uncrowned King of the Arabians."

By his clear-headed judgment, an unwavering code of impartiality and justice and twenty years of honest dealing with suspicious sheiks and Moslem princes, Lawrence has become an idol in Islam.

RUNAWAY GIRLS ARE SOUGHT IN XENIA

Juvenile Court authorities have been asked to aid in the search for two 16-year-old girls of Prospect, Marion County, who disappeared together about a week ago and have not been seen since.

The incident was brought to the attention of J. E. Watts, probation officer, by Edwin Moore, father of one of the missing girls, who is visiting a number of cities in the southern section of the state in an effort to trace the pair.

The father is frantic with anxiety because of the fact the mother of Elizabeth Moore, one of the girls, is in a dying condition. The other girl is Beatrice Hurd.

The Moore girl is described as having light hair and blue eyes, is five feet, six inches in height and weighs 166 pounds.

Information as to the whereabouts of the girls should be telephoned to Edwin Moore at Prospect, O.

The girls are believed to have headed for this part of Ohio and one was reported seen in Dayton.

Single prescription made a family doctor famous

SELDOM has any single act been of greater benefit to mankind than the one which Dr. Caldwell performed back in 1885 when he wrote the prescription which has carried his fame to the four corners of the earth.

Over and over, Dr. Caldwell wrote this prescription as he found men, women, and children suffering from those common symptoms of constipation, such as coated tongue, bad breath, headaches, gas, nausea, biliousness, poor appetite, or lack of energy, etc. And it invariably relieved these symptoms so much more pleasantly, so much quicker than other things, that his patients simply had to tell other people about it.

The demand for this prescription grew so fast that by 1888 Dr. Caldwell was forced to have it put up ready for use and supply drug stores with it. Today you can get the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, at all drug stores.

When you or your children suffer from any of the symptoms of constipation, it will pay you to remember this safe, pleasant-tasting, effective laxative; made only from herbs and other pure ingredients; a real corrective for constipation. A doctor's 47-year experience behind this formula!

He presents a fine figure in a London drawing room and is a power in the tented cities of Jebel Shammar and the Roba El Khali, which is known to infidel Europeans as the Great Sandy desert.

If there is any Christian who can pacify the turbulent tribes of Arabia without resorting to force it is Thomas Edward Lawrence, who began his desert career as a humble member from All Souls' college, Oxford, of a British museum expedition in 1910 and now, two decades later, is known as the "Uncrowned King of the Arabians."

By his clear-headed judgment, an unwavering code of impartiality and justice and twenty years of honest dealing with suspicious sheiks and Moslem princes, Lawrence has become an idol in Islam.

RUNAWAY GIRLS ARE SOUGHT IN XENIA

Juvenile Court authorities have been asked to aid in the search for two 16-year-old girls of Prospect, Marion County, who disappeared together about a week ago and have not been seen since.

The incident was brought to the attention of J. E. Watts, probation officer, by Edwin Moore, father of one of the missing girls, who is visiting a number of cities in the southern section of the state in an effort to trace the pair.

The father is frantic with anxiety because of the fact the mother of Elizabeth Moore, one of the girls, is in a dying condition. The other girl is Beatrice Hug.

The Moore girl is described as having light hair and blue eyes, is five feet, six inches in height and weighs 166 pounds.

Information as to the whereabouts of the girls should be telephoned to Edwin Moore at Prospect, O.

The girls are believed to have headed for this part of Ohio and one was reported seen in Dayton.

Single prescription made a family doctor famous

SELDOM has any single act been of greater benefit to mankind than the one which Dr. Caldwell performed back in 1885 when he wrote the prescription which has carried his fame to the four corners of the earth.

Over and over, Dr. Caldwell wrote this prescription as he found men, women, and children suffering from those common symptoms of constipation, such as coated tongue, bad breath, headaches, gas, nausea, biliousness, poor appetite, or lack of energy, etc. And it invariably relieved these symptoms so much more pleasantly, so much quicker than other things, that his patients simply had to tell other people about it.

The demand for this prescription grew so fast that by 1888 Dr. Caldwell was forced to have it put up ready for use and supply drug stores with it. Today you can get the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, at all drug stores.

When you or your children suffer from any of the symptoms of constipation, it will pay you to remember this safe, pleasant-tasting, effective laxative; made only from herbs and other pure ingredients; a real corrective for constipation. A doctor's 47-year experience behind this formula!

CHATTY— GODDESS OF CAB

By BEATRICE BURTON, Author of: "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "SALLY'S SHOULDERS," "MONEY LOVE," "LOVE BOUND," ETC.

COPYRIGHT 1929, CENTRAL PRESS ASS'N, INC., CLEVELAND, OHIO.

READ THIS FIRST:

Charlotte Chatterton, nicknamed Chatty, is a born gossip. Her mother, a widowed dressmaker, has one wealthy customer, Mrs. Van Nuys, and through her Chatty gets a job as switchboard operator in the Van Nuys bond house. There she meets and falls in love with David Jordan, handsome young bond salesman, and becomes jealous of his friendship with Agnes Herford, Mr. Van Nuys' secretary.

Billie Langenau, who works in the office, comes to live in the flat across the hall from where Chatty lives. Chatty's brother, Pud, goes to high school and works evenings in Ben Tomlinson's drug store. Chatty learns that he delivers gin for Ben, and begs him to stop before he is arrested, but Pud refuses to do it.

One day Chatty sees David hand a note to Agnes Herford. Jealous, she goes through Agnes' desk to look for it. It is a simple message about some bonds, but in hunting for it Chatty finds Agnes' diary, filled with the story of her love for her employer. Chatty tears some of the pages out, and sends them to Mrs. Van, and Agnes is discharged. Dave Jordan, alone, knows that Chatty is responsible, and he drops her. Winnie Talcott, the office "vamp," gets Agnes' position. Winnie gets quite chummy with Chatty, and at a party Chatty meets Bryant Dunning, a new bond salesman. Winnie shows Chatty how to paint her face and "doll up." Bryant is married, but tells Chatty he has left his wife.

Agnes calls at Chatty's house and tells Chatty that Mr. Van had never suspected she was in love with him until the diary turned up. Agnes says she has seen Mr. Van at his office, and Chatty promises not to tell a soul.

Chatty decides to tell Mrs. Van about Agnes.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"It looks so sad, doesn't it?" she asked plaintively. "Hanging there, empty? I suppose your wife took the bird away with her when she left you, didn't she?"

Bryant shook his blond, close cropped head.

"It died," he said, shortly. "Come on, let's go."

In the bottom of Chatty's little bag was a stub of a pencil, and on the way out to the roadhouse she asked Bryant to stop at a drug store.

It was a little neighborhood drug store, and on the sidewalk in front of its lighted windows stood a mail box.

"What could be simpler?" Chatty asked herself, getting out of the car.

"I'll be back in a jiffy. Don't bother to come with me," she said to Bryant. "I just have to get something."

The "something" that she just had to get was a two-cent stamp. She got it from the stamp machine on the counter.

Then she went into the telephone booth at the back of the store.

And there, on Bryant's note paper, she wrote an unsigned letter. It was very short—only a few words, but every one of them was tipped with poison.

"Dear Mrs. Van Nuys: Why don't you ask your husband why Miss Herford, his former secretary, spent this afternoon closed up in his office with him?"

She put it into the envelope she had taken from Bryant's desk, stamped the envelope and dropped it into the mail box on her way back to the car, where Bryant was waiting for her.

"Now we'll see what happens!" she thought, settling back against the cushions of the car. "Maybe nothing much will happen—but you never can tell!"

She was exactly like a child who strikes a match to a firecracker, tosses it away, and then waits to hear it go off.

The Lollypop Inn had changed its name to The Wayside House. The new name was painted above the door.

But, aside from that, it was the same quaint, neat little place that it always had been. It nestled behind its white picket fence, small and low and white as some cozy farm house tucked away in a country lane, all its white curtained windows golden with the light from within.

At the back of it was a long sunroom. And on this particular Saturday night the orchestra was playing there and every table was taken.

Above the tables the faces of girls, pretty, painted and smiling, seemed to blossom like flowers in the light. There were yellow candle shades on all the lights and all over the room blue drifts of cigarette smoke rose toward the ceiling.

"When day is done—and grass is wet with twilight's dew," sang the leader of the orchestra, waving his arms in time to the music, "My lonely heart is sinking with the sun—"

But there were no lonely hearts in The Wayside House that Saturday night. Hot, eager faces leaned toward each other across the tables, hands caught other hands, and held them, hearts beat against hearts as couple by couple rose to dance in the tiny cleared space in the middle of the room.

"I miss your kiss—your tender lips
The whole night long,
I miss you most of all
When day is done—"

sang the orchestra leader, sadly.

"I won't miss anybody!" cried Chatty, standing in the doorway with both of her small hands clasped around Bryant's arm and her face alight with her wide, happy smile.

And just then, on the other side of the crowded, lighted, smoke-filled, noisy room, she saw Dave Jordan looking at her.

His brown eyes held hers for a moment.

Then he turned his head away, and said something to the girl who was sitting across the table from him.....and, with a sense of shock, Chatty saw that it was the girl he had bought flowers for on Easter Saturday! The girl who wouldn't marry a man unless he was making ten thousand a year!

For a second Chatty felt a wave of jealousy sweep over her like chills and fever.

"It didn't take him long to start rushing her again!" she thought, bitterly. "I'll bet he never did stop liking her—"

Oh, but what difference did it make, after all? He was out of her life now, and Bryant Dunning was in it. Bryant and all the fun and excitement that he had brought along with him.

She smiled up at him again, with wide, brilliant eyes, and rubbed her cheek against the shoulder of his gray flannel coat.

You could do things like that in The Wayside House late on a Saturday night, and nobody paid any particular attention to you.

There were too many things like that going on in the long, narrow room. Here a girl lay her head on the shoulder of the man who was with her, her arm around his neck. There a man bent his head to the upturned face of his dancing partner.

There were bowls of cracked ice and bottles of gingerale or mineral water on almost every white covered table. And sharper than the smell of cigarette smoke, the smell of liquor was in the warm air of the place.

"There's Jim—and Winnie. They've taken a table," Bryant said suddenly. "Over there in the corner. See, baby."

And, to her horror, Chatty saw that their table was next to the table where Dave was sitting with the Easter Saturday girl!

Without a glance in their direction, Chatty walked past them and sat down with Jim and Winnie.

Behind her she could hear Bryant saying something to Dave, but she tried not to listen. She pulled her vanity case from her bag and began to make up her face as if nothing else in the world was half so important.

"Well, how about a little drink?" she said to Jim, when she had finished and was putting the case back. "We didn't come out here to stay sober, did we?"

She did not want a drink. She had been doing her best to like strong liquor, but she still hated the taste of it as much as she had weeks ago, when she first began to drink.

But drinking was part of the business of becoming a good sport, just as smoking was.....Part of the business of having a rip-roaring good time. The business of forgetting unpleasant things like Dave Jordan's treatment of her, and his attitude towards the stolen diary.

"Hail, hail! The gang's in Jail!" sang Winnie, in an undertone, holding out her water glass for some of the white silk. "Mustn't say the naughty word—mustn't say the naughty word—"

She stood up suddenly, and called out to Bryant.

"Hey, what's the matter with you, boy?" she yelled above the din and confusion of the room. "Are you with Dave and his girl friend or with us? Hey—come on over here, where you belong, you!"

The girl with Dave half turned in her chair to look at her. Wonder and disgust were written all over her pretty face.

"Look at her, tryin' to high-hat me," said Winnie in an undertone. "Who is that girl, Jim? Is that the girl Dave's been hurrying for so long?"

"Yes. But sit down," Jim answered, plainly embarrassed. "Don't yell at Bryant. He'll come over here when he's ready to."

"No, he's coming NOW! This minute!" declared Winnie, who was always too noisy when she had been drinking.

With every one of her dyed curls a-quiver, she went marching over to Dave Jordan's table and brought Bryant back with her.

"Hail, hail! The gang's all here!" she sang in triumph. "Mustn't go away again, mustn't go away again—" and she pushed him down into a chair.

Half sick with shame, Chatty got up and left the table. Quite near it was the women's lounge and dressing room.

Three or four girls were in it, smoking and making up their faces before the mirrors that lined it. The air was heavy with the smell of their smoke and the fragrance of face powder and perfume and perspiration.

Chatty flung open the one and only window in the place, and leaned her elbows on the sill, her face lifted to the cool wind that blew in from the darkness.

Suddenly she heard a voice that she knew, somewhere below the tangle of vines under the window.

"Here, Ben, give it here!" it said.....Pud's voice! His loud, young voice that was just beginning to deepen into a man's voice. "I'll take it in."

Then Ben Tomlinson's voice answered something that Chatty couldn't make out.....But she knew what the pair of them were doing. They were delivering gin to the Wayside House for its law-breaking patrons!

"I want to go home. I want to go home right away!" she told Bryant when she went hurrying back to the table.

But Bryant wouldn't hear of their leaving then. "Why, it's just the shank of the evening, Baby," he said. "We're going to stay right here 'till closing time."

They stayed.

She spent that night at Winnie's house, because she was ashamed to go home and face her mother when she had been drinking.

She was too befuddled with drink even to telephone Mrs. Chatterton to tell her that she wasn't coming home. Winnie had to do it for her.

"She says your kid brother is still out, too," said Winnie. "She says she's worried about him."

"She'd better be worried," thought Chatty, sinking into heavy sleep.

On Monday night, when Chatty came home from the office, Mrs. Van Nuys was there.

She was in the Front Room, talking to Mrs. Chatterton, and through the half-open door Chatty could hear what she was saying.

"I'm going on Saturday, Hattie, if you can get those things finished. So do your best for me, won't you?"

"You know I will," Mrs. Chatterton's soft voice answered. "But I wonder if you're doing the right thing by going away, Kate. Maybe it would be better if you stayed here and kept your eye on him."

Chatty knew they were talking about Mr. Van.

"No, I think a little vacation is a good thing for married people sometimes," Mrs. Van said. "I've made up my mind to go away and let him see all of that girl that he wants to. Maybe he'll be tired of her by the time I come back."

She started for the door as she spoke, and Chatty scuttled away to her bedroom. She couldn't face Mrs. Van just then—

CHATTY—GODDESS OF GAB

By BEATRICE BURTON, Author of: "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "SALLY'S SHOULDERS," "MONEY LOVE," "LOVE BOUND," ETC.

COPYRIGHT 1929, CENTRAL PRESS ASS'N, INC., CLEVELAND, OHIO.

READ THIS FIRST:

Charlotte Chatterton, nicknamed Chatty, is a born gossip. Her mother, a widowed dressmaker, has one wealthy customer, Mrs. Van Nuys, and through her Chatty gets a job as switchboard operator in the Van Nuys bond house. There she meets and falls in love with David Jordan, handsome young bond salesman, and becomes jealous of his friendship with Agnes Herford, Mr. Van Nuys' secretary.

Billie Langenau, who works in the office, comes to live in the flat across the hall from where Chatty lives. Chatty's brother, Pud, goes to high school and works evenings in Ben Tomlinson's drug store. Chatty learns that he delivers gin for Ben, and begs him to stop before he is arrested, but Pud refuses to do it.

One day Chatty sees David hand a note to Agnes Herford. Jealous, she goes through Agnes' desk to look for it. It is a simple message about some bonds, but in hunting for it Chatty finds Agnes' diary, filled with the story of her love for her employer. Chatty tears some of the pages out, and sends them to Mrs. Van, and Agnes is discharged. Dave Jordan, alone, knows that Chatty is responsible, and he drops her. Winnie Talcott, the office "vamp," gets Agnes' position. Winnie gets quite chummy with Chatty, and at a party Chatty meets Bryant Dunning, a new bond salesman. Winnie shows Chatty how to paint her face and "doll up." Bryant is married, but tells Chatty he has left his wife.

Agnes calls at Chatty's house and tells Chatty that Mr. Van had never suspected she was in love with him until the diary turned up. Agnes says she has seen Mr. Van at his office, and Chatty promises not to tell a soul.

Chatty decides to tell Mrs. Van about Agnes.

CHAPTER XXVII

"It looks so sad, doesn't it?" she asked plaintively. "Hanging there, empty? I suppose your wife took the bird away with her when she left you, didn't she?"

Bryant shook his blond, close cropped head.

"It died," he said, shortly. "Come on, let's go."

In the bottom of Chatty's little bag was a stub of a pencil, and on the way out to the roadhouse she asked Bryant to stop at a drug store.

It was a little neighborhood drug store, and on the sidewalk in front of its lighted windows stood a mail box.

"What could be simpler?" Chatty asked herself, getting out of the car.

"I'll be back in a jiffy. Don't bother to come with me," she said to Bryant. "I just have to get something."

The "something" that she just had to get was a two-cent stamp. She got it from the stamp machine on the counter.

Then she went into the telephone booth at the back of the store.

And there, on Bryant's note paper, she wrote an unsigned letter. It was very short—only a few words, but every one of them was tipped with poison.

"Dear Mrs. Van Nuys: Why don't you ask your husband why Miss Herford, his former secretary, spent this afternoon closed up in his office with him?"

She put it into the envelope she had taken from Bryant's desk, stamped the envelope and dropped it into the mail box on her way back to the car, where Bryant was waiting for her.

"Now we'll see what happens!" she thought, settling back against the cushions of the car. "Maybe nothing much will happen—but you never can tell!"

She was exactly like a child who strikes a match to a firecracker, tosses it away, and then waits to hear it go off.

The Lollypop Inn had changed its name to The Wayside House. The new name was painted above the door.

But, aside from that, it was the same quaint, neat little place that it always had been. It nestled behind its white picket fence, small and low and white as some cozy farm house tucked away in a country lane, all its white curtained windows golden with the light from within.

At the back of it was a long sunroom. And on this particular Saturday night the orchestra was playing there and every table was taken.

Above the tables the faces of girls, pretty, painted and smiling, seemed to blossom like flowers in the light. There were yellow candle shades on all the lights and all over the room blue drifts of cigarette smoke rose toward the ceiling.

"When day is done—and grass is wet with twilight's dew," sang the leader of the orchestra, waving his arms in time to the music, "My lonely heart is sinking with the sun—"

But there were no lonely hearts in The Wayside House that Saturday night. Hot, eager faces leaned toward each other across the tables, hands caught other hands, and held them, hearts beat against hearts as couple by couple rose to dance in the tiny cleared space in the middle of the room.

"I miss your kiss—your tender lips
The whole night long,
I miss you most of all
When day is done—"

sang the orchestra leader, sadly.

"I won't miss anybody!" cried Chatty, standing in the doorway with both of her small hands clasped around Bryant's arm and her face alight with her wide, happy smile.

And just then, on the other side of the crowded, lighted, smoke-filled, noisy room, she saw Dave Jordan looking at her.

His brown eyes held hers for a moment.

Then he turned his head away, and said something to the girl who was sitting across the table from him—and, with a sense of shock, Chatty saw that it was the girl he had bought flowers for on Easter Saturday! The girl who wouldn't marry a man unless he was making ten thousand a year!

For a second Chatty felt a wave of jealousy sweep over her like chills and fever.

"It didn't take him long to start rushing her again!" she thought, bitterly. "I'll bet he never did stop liking her—"

Oh, but what difference did it make, after all? He was out of her life now, and Bryant Dunning was in it. Bryant and all the fun and excitement that he had brought along with him.

You could do things like that in The Wayside House late on a Saturday night, and nobody paid any particular attention to you.

There were too many things like that going on in the long, narrow room. Here a girl lay her head on the shoulder of the man who was with her, her arm around his neck. There a man bent his head to the upturned face of his dancing partner.

There were bowls of cracked ice and bottles of gingerale or mineral water on almost every white covered table. And sharper than the smell of cigarette smoke, the smell of liquor was in the warm air of the place.

"There's Jim—and Winnie. They've taken a table," Bryant said suddenly. "Over there in the corner. See, baby."

And, to her horror, Chatty saw that their table was next to the table where Dave was sitting with the Easter Saturday girl!

Without a glance in their direction, Chatty walked past them and sat down with Jim and Winnie.

Behind her she could hear Bryant saying something to Dave, but she tried not to listen. She pulled her vanity case from her bag and began to make up her face as if nothing else in the world was half so important.

"Well, how about a little drink?" she said to Jim, when she had finished and was putting the case back. "We didn't come out here to stay sober, did we?"

She did not want a drink. She had been doing her best to like strong liquor, but she still hated the taste of it as much as she had weeks ago, when she first began to drink.

But drinking was part of the business of becoming a good sport, just as smoking was. Part of the business of having a rip-roaring good time. The business of forgetting unpleasant things like Dave Jordan's treatment of her, and his attitude towards the stolen diary.

"Hail, hail! The gang's in Jail!" sang Winnie, in an undertone, holding out her water glass for some of the white silk. "Mustn't say the naughty word—mustn't say the naughty word—"

She stood up suddenly, and called out to Bryant.

"Hey, what's the matter with you, boy?" she yelled above the din and confusion of the room. "Are you with Dave and his girl friend or with us? Hey—come on over here, where you belong, you!"

The girl with Dave half turned in her chair to look at her. Wonder and disgust were written all over her pretty face.

"Look at her, tryin' to high-hat me," said Winnie in an undertone. "Who is that girl, Jim? Is that the girl Dave's been hurrying for so long?"

"Yes. But sit down," Jim answered, plainly embarrassed. "Don't yell at Bryant. He'll come over here when he's ready to."

"No, he's coming NOW! This minute!" declared Winnie, who was always too noisy when she had been drinking.

With every one of her dyed curls a-quiver, she went marching over to Dave Jordan's table and brought Bryant back with her.

"Hail, hail! The gang's all here!" she sang in triumph. "Mustn't go away again, mustn't go away again—" and she pushed him down into a chair.

Half sick with shame, Chatty got up and left the table. Quite near it was the women's lounge and dressing room.

Three or four girls were in it, smoking and making up their faces before the mirrors that lined it. The air was heavy with the smell of their smoke and the fragrance of face powder and perfume and perspiration.

Chatty flung open the one and only window in the place, and leaned her elbows on the sill, her face lifted to the cool wind that blew in from the darkness.

Suddenly she heard a voice that she knew, somewhere below the tangle of vines under the window.

"Here, Ben, give it here!" it said. Pud's voice! His loud, young voice that was just beginning to deepen into a man's voice. "I'll take it in."

Then Ben Tomlinson's voice answered something that Chatty couldn't make out. But she knew what the pair of them were doing. They were delivering gin to the Wayside House for its law-breaking patrons!

"I want to go home. I want to go home right away!" she told Bryant when she went hurrying back to the table.

But Bryant wouldn't hear of their leaving then. "Why, it's just the shank of the evening, Baby," he said. "We're going to stay right here 'till closing time."

They stayed.

She spent that night at Winnie's house, because she was ashamed to go home and face her mother when she had been drinking.

She was too befuddled with drink even to telephone Mrs. Chatterton to tell her that she wasn't coming home. Winnie had to do it for her.

"She says your kid brother is still out, too," said Winnie. "She says she's worried about him."

"She'd better be worried," thought Chatty, sinking into heavy sleep.

On Monday night, when Chatty came home from the office, Mrs. Van Nuys was there.

She was in the Front Room, talking to Mrs. Chatterton, and through the half-open door Chatty could hear what she was saying.

"I'm going on Saturday, Hattie, if you can get those things finished. So do your best for me, won't you?"

"You know I will," Mrs. Chatterton's soft voice answered. "But I wonder if you're doing the right thing by going away, Kate. Maybe it would be better if you stayed here and kept your eye on him."

Chatty knew they were talking about Mr. Van.

"No, I think a little vacation is a good thing for married people sometimes," Mrs. Van said. "I've made up my mind to go away and let him see all of that girl that he wants to. Maybe he'll be tired of her by the time I come back."

She started for the door as she spoke, and Chatty scuttled away to her bedroom. She couldn't face Mrs. Van just then—

The Theater

The Xenia Little Theater Guild, dormant during the hot weather months, has begun its fall and winter program of activities by greasing the skids for a new membership campaign.

Members feel assured that the impetus given the organization by its excellent program of amateur plays last season, will help it greatly toward obtaining a much larger membership this year.

It is needless to point out that the small town must make its own entertainment. Small town life in America is dull or entertaining, only as its citizens enter into the effort to provide diversion for themselves. The little theater organization offers an outlet for many inclined to an interest in the drama, either from the standpoint of players or supporters. The Xenia organization points out that it is not necessary to have histrionic ability or a desire to appear on the stage. Much good can be accomplished through a supporting membership that enables the organization to undertake an even greater schedule of activities than last year.

A genial soul who proposed the organization of a hobo party in New York last week, placed, as one of the planks in the new party's platform, the name of Al Jolson as national jester, believing that the nation should have an opportunity to laugh now and then.

The recognition from the new party is a new high spot in the career of the Jewish boy who rode to success behind a black face. Jolson was not getting ahead in vaudeville one time, years ago. His act was dull. One evening his negro dresser suggested: "Boss, why not black yo' face?" Jolson first used blackface makeup that night—and went over big.

Doris Dawson, film player from Nevada and a wampas baby star, was seriously injured September 6 in Hollywood when she was run down by an automobile. The driver fled, and is being sought. Miss Dawson's picture decorates the column today.

John Barrymore, the magnificent, is slated for a part in "Show of Shows", the Warner production that will present a cast of 100 stars. Barrymore's contribution to the picture will be a scene from Shakespeare's "Richard the Third." It will be the first time he has enacted a Shakespearean role on the screen. The scene selected is one of the famous soliloquies. Alice Gentle, opera star, will sing the aria from "Carmen."

SIX SCHOOL CANDIDATES ARE REJECTED

FAULTY PETITIONS WILL BAR MIAMI TWP. OFFICE SEEKERS

Only One Candidate Remains In Contest To Fill Three Vacancies; Petition Of Bath Twp. Candidate Also Rejected

Nominating petitions of six out of seven candidates who filed for the board of education of Miami Twp. Rural School District were rejected by the Greene County board of elections Wednesday night, leaving only one candidate eligible to campaign for the three vacancies on the school board that must be filled at the general election November 5.

An objection filed with the board by E. H. Folk, Faye Kershner and Ralph Figgins, protesting against the candidacies of Kenneth Fogg, Alton Huston, Mrs. Gay Brewer and Towne Carlisle, was sustained on the ground the nominating petition was sworn to by Carlisle, one of the candidates.

This was declared to be illegal for the reason that the oath must be sworn to by one of the signers of the petition and Carlisle, being a candidate, could not be and was not a signer.

A technical error resulted in the petitions of Lincoln R. Gibbs and P. M. Neff, also candidates for the school board, being rejected by the board on the ground of insufficient number of signatures. Each petition must contain twenty-five signatures to be legal.

Petitions of Gibbs and Neff were thrown out following an objection filed by Leona G. Brewer, Alton Huston, C. J. Mellinger and C. M. Alexander.

The petition of Morton Dallas, another candidate for the school board, was the only one approved by the board.

There is a possibility, however, that Kenneth Fogg may be allowed to become a candidate after all because of a second petition filed with the board on behalf of E. K. Fogg. The election board was advised that Kenneth Fogg and E. K. Fogg are one and the same man.

Whether the objection which resulted in rejection of the candidacy of Fogg under the name of Kenneth Fogg would also apply to his second petition under the name of E. K. Fogg will be threshed out by the board at another meeting called for 7:30 o'clock Friday night, at which the opinion of Prosecuting Attorney J. Carl Marshall will be sought on the matter.

In the event there are an insufficient number of candidates eligible to have their names on the ballot for the three school board vacancies at the November election, voters of the district will be permitted to write in the names of candidates when they visit the polls.

On the ground of insufficient legal signatures, the board also disallowed nominating petitions filed on behalf of Charles Funderburg, who was a candidate for marshal of Fairfield village and also constable of Bath Twp.

The board discovered that twenty-two signatures on each petition were in the same handwriting, indicating a majority of the names had been written by one person.

Elimination of Funderburg leaves four candidates in the race for marshal of the village of Fairfield and also reduces the number of candidates for constable of Bath Twp. from seven to six.

There will be no contest over vacancies that will exist on the Caesarcreek Twp. School District board of education because of the withdrawal of H. M. Smith from the race, leaving only three candidates in the field.

Because of confusion over the political affairs in Miami Twp. school circles, the election board adjourned at a late hour Wednesday night with its business of the evening still unfinished.

The board must still consider nominating petitions of candidates of Xenia and Sugarcreek Twps. and this matter will be taken up at Friday night's session.

Word has been received in Yellow Springs of the death of Mrs. Jennie Weeks Scudder, 81, Washington, D. C., which occurred in Amherst, N. H., Tuesday. Mrs. Scudder was spending her vacation in Amherst and had been ill only one week, her death being caused by heart trouble.

Mrs. Scudder was well known in Yellow Springs, having spent her early life there. Both she and her husband, William H. Scudder, who preceded her in death fourteen years were members of the graduating class of 1870 of Antioch College. Her father, the late Rev. Joseph Warren Weeks, was a prominent minister in the Christian Church.

Mrs. Scudder is survived by one son, Prof. Harold H. Scudder, Durham, N. H., and two grandchildren, Elizabeth and James William Scudder.

The remains will be brought to Yellow Springs for burial and short services will be held at the grave in Glen Forest Cemetery, Friday morning at 8 o'clock.
